50,000 Troops Are Held Ready to Take Over Mine Control; Await Order

Furnaces Close
Three Blast Furnaces Close Down Because of Fuel Shortage

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—President Roosevelt, declaring that work in captive coal mines must recommence, called upon steel company and union executives today to maintain a status quo on the issue of a "closed shop" for the period of the national emergency or to submit this issue to arbitration, agreeing to accept in advance any decision reached.

The Chief Executive laid his alternatives before John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; Benjamin Fairless, president of United States Steel, Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, and Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown sheet and tube, in identical letters.

"For the common good, for the maintenance of defense production," Mr. Roosevelt wrote, "it is imperative that one of these two alternatives be chosen and faithfully followed."

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Sympathy strikes spread in the nation's commercial coal mines today and more threatened as President Roosevelt conferred again with government officials, management and union representatives in an effort to avert a threatened strike by railway workers.

It was learned that 50,000 troops were in readiness to take over the mines if the President decided to use them to back up his assertion that coal for steel mills "must" be mined.

An authoritative source said the President probably would withhold action in the captive coal mine dispute, which has affected 53,000 miners producing fuel for vital steel mills, until after the C. I. O. concludes its convention in Detroit Friday.

Three blast furnaces which had been producing steel in the Birmingham, Ala., area, already were closed due to lack of fuel and the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation announced it probably would have to close six by tomorrow.

This morning Mr. Roosevelt met with government officials directly concerned with the threatened rail strike. This afternoon he will meet representatives of railroad management and labor.

Thirty-two commercial coal mines in Pennsylvania were closed by the spreading sympathy strike movement, which also had closed three mines of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation and Duquesne Light Company where the union shop—issue over which the United Mine Worker called out captive miners—already is in effect.

Partial Operations
Partial operations continued at some Pennsylvania captive mines, some 200 or more miners, police said, being at work at a Bethlehem Steel Company pit at Rosedale and 500 or so, by count of union leaders, entering mines in Fayette county of the H. C. Frick Company where normally 13,600 work.

U.M.W. picket lines were reinforced in Fayette county, center of the captive mine industry. Picketing also was in effect in West Virginia, where 200 state troopers went on duty last night in mine areas. Ten men were arrested during the night as police searched automobiles headed toward six "big steel" captive pits. Partial operations were reported at several mines.

Preparations for the use of the troops were said to be completed down to the last details, which include special instructions to the men on how to comport themselves in the presence of mine workers. The timetable calls for occupation of the captive mine centers within a few hours after the necessary orders are issued.

However, informed quarters emphasized, there has been no final decision yet to use the army.

President Bids Time
Mr. Roosevelt, one authoritative source indicated, was purposefully biding his time and giving C. I. O.'s striking United Mine Workers ample opportunity to reconsider the adamant position the union has taken to enforce its demand for a union shop in the captive pits which are owned and operated by the big steel companies.

There was a veiled intimation of the President's attitude in the message he sent to the C. I. O. convention yesterday, calling for production of the sinews of defense "without delay and without interruption."

The statement that the President would stay his hand for a (Continued on Page 12)

Britain Sees Young Officers Put Into Key Posts in Army

General Sir Alan Brooke Is Chief of Imperial Staff; His Chief Aide Is Nye, 45

London, Nov. 19 (AP)—A shake up of Britain's army command in which General Sir Alan "Wizard" Brooke, 58, was named chief of the imperial general staff and younger general officers were given key posts was announced today by the war office.

The youngest man involved is Major General A. E. Nye, 45, one of the youngest generals Britain has known, who will become vice chief of the imperial general staff.

General Brooke will assume his new position December 25, when the present chief, General Sir John G. Dill, reaches the retirement age of 60. General Dill was made field marshal and will become governor of Bombay when the term of Sir Roger Lumley expires.

The chief of staff-designate, a member of the distinguished northern Ireland family known as "The Fighting Brookes," is a specialist on military mechanization, gunnery and anti-aircraft defense.

He has been commander-in-chief of the home forces since July 10, 1940, and welcomed an invasion scare with a challenge to the Germans that any attempt to invade Britain would give him the opportunity of "throwing the Nazis back into the sea."

Other appointments were: Lieutenant General B. C. T. Paget, 54, praised in Commons for his skillful withdrawal of British troops from Norway in 1940, to succeed General Brooke as commander-in-chief of the home forces.

Lieutenant General Sir Henry R. Pownall, 53, vice chief of the general staff, "selected for a special appointment" which was not disclosed.

Lieutenant General B. L. Montgomery, 54, to succeed Paget as commander of the southeastern command.

The appointment of Major General Nye as principal assistant to General Brooke marks another step in one of the most remarkable careers in modern British military history. Not only is he a comparatively young man, but he has come up from the ranks.

Children Quit Schools
New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—The New York City Board of Education revealed yesterday that hundreds of pupils are leaving the city's schools weekly to take $15 and $25-a-week jobs created by the defense-industrial boom. The board's report said that 2,000 pupils quit their classrooms for the factories during the month of October, and urged parents to try to influence their children to remain in school until their graduation.

Three Persons Die

By ROY P. PORTER
New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—The average Frenchman lives today literally from hand to mouth, with much thought of the present and almost none for the future.

His life is complicated from early in the morning to late at night by a never-ending string of decrees, ordinances, proclamations, regulations and simple instructions. This is true in both the German-occupied and unoccupied zone.

Take Jean Durand, for example, in the German controlled territory. He is a middle-class white-collar worker who earns 2,500 francs a month (about $55) clerking in a men's wear shop in downtown Paris. He lives with his wife and two children in a four room apartment in the Passy district of western Paris for which he pays 5,000 francs a year rent plus 2,700 francs taxes.

When Jean gets up in the morning, he has had a good night's sleep because, by German military order, he had to be home before the midnight curfew. He could not stay out later because, as a day worker, he is not entitled to a night pass. If he went to visit friends after dinner and since there are no taxis, he had to catch the last subway train which left shortly after 11 p. m. All subways stop at 11:30.

When he shaves in the morning, he has to use a gritty mixture of synthetic soap and sandlike ingredients, which he has bought on his soap ration coupon. He shaves and washes in cold water five days a week because his apartment building is allowed hot water on only two days—generally Saturday and Sunday. The two days are consecutive to save coal and sometimes the warm water runs over into the morning of a third day.

His breakfast is usually black coffee and bread. The coffee cannot contain more than 20 percent real coffee; the rest may be malt, herbs, or toasted almonds. It has to be black because milk is reserved for children and nursing mothers. His wife buys the coffee on her ration card and hands (Continued on Page 13)

Reds Deal Crushing Defeat to Germans Caught in Trap Near Rostov; Pepper Says Japan Should Know U.S. Is Ready

Senator Says Kurusu Should Understand United States Has Made Its Last Concession

Talks to Resume

Kurusu and Nomura to Meet Again With Officials

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) said today that Saburo Kurusu, Japan's special envoy, should know that "if war in the Pacific is the price of resisting the Japanese rampage then war will have to come."

Pepper, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, told reporters that Kurusu, who has been conferring with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull on the Far Eastern situation, "should understand that this country has gone as far as we are going."

"The time has come to draw a line," Pepper said. "If the Japanese don't like it they can lump it. We have watched them murder and rape and ravage a large part of the earth. We have seen them encroach on our interests, foot by foot, yard by yard and mile by mile."

"If they want peace, let them stop their aggression; let them get out of China. America will not acquiesce in any so-called 'new order' which is built of the honest and washed of the blood of innocent victims."

May Resume Talks
Kurusu and Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese ambassador, who conferred with Secretary Hull for nearly three hours yesterday, are expected to resume the talks as soon as they receive new instructions from Tokyo—possibly today.

Senator Pepper, a supporter of President Roosevelt's foreign policy, asserted that "if Kurusu has come over here to indicate that Japan has seen the error of her ways and is determined to forsake her evil associates—Germany and Italy—then he may be assured of an unqualified welcome."

"But if he has come here to get our acquiescence in a program by which Japan would retain the loot she has taken and make us a silent partner to her brigandage then he can count on no comfort. If war in the Pacific is the price of resisting the Japanese rampage then war will have to come."

Pepper said Kurusu ought to understand that "the temper of America is not one of appeasement."

Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) decried talk of war between the two Pacific nations, with the assertion that "there is no reason in the world why the United States and Japan should go to war."

In one of the longest diplomatic conferences ever held here, Secretary Hull yesterday canvassed the general situation in the Pacific with Nomura and Kurusu.

When the Japanese diplomats receive their new instructions on the basis of the report they made to Tokyo last night, it is expected that the talks will crystallize around some of the specific questions that have brought Japanese-American relations to their current tension.

Refrigerator Prices Reduced

The average price of an electric refrigerator 20 years ago was $600.
The average price today is $154—for a lot better product. One thing that made this price reduction possible was that millions of people bought electric refrigerators. Volume brought prices down.

And one thing that made volume possible was advertising, which taught people to want electric refrigerators. That's how advertising helps bring prices down.—Advertising Federation of America.

Appeals Court Is Against Hampton Civil Service Law

Act Which Gives Lasting Civil Service Status to War Veterans Is Ruled Invalid

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP)—The Court of Appeals declared unconstitutional today the Hampton Civil Service Law, enacted last April, granting a permanent status to provisional municipal employees after three years' continuous employment.

Unanimously, the state's highest tribunal affirmed an Appellate Division decision which held provisional appointments "cannot ripen into permanent appointment" because one class of employees may not hold a position to the exclusion of persons on appropriate eligible lists.

"The statute," concluded the Court of Appeals, "violates the Constitution."

The action was brought against the New York city municipal civil service commission by 104 New York city relief investigators who were hired on a provisional basis in 1935 and employed regularly until last year.

As a result of their years of service, they contended their positions should be placed on a permanent status.

The Appellate Division held the Hampton law violated article six of the State Constitution, which provides civil service positions "so far as practicable" must be filled through competitive examination.

The law, sponsored by State Senator William Hampton, Utica Republican, about which Governor Lehman expressed "grave doubts" when he signed it, specifically protects World War veterans. The Appellate Division said this discriminates "arbitrarily and unreasonably" against other veterans.

Tokyo Is Warned Burma Road Watched

London, Nov. 19 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in the House of Commons today that any attack by Japan on the Burma Road would "create a grave situation."

The Burma Road, twisting through the mountains from British Burma through Yunnan Province to Chungking, is one of the principal lines of supply for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese forces.

Recurrent reports of the massing of Japanese troops in northern French-Indo China have stirred wide conjecture that Japan may be planning to invade Yunnan Province in an effort to cut the road.

An authoritative source said earlier that Japanese naval activity also "suggests increased pressure on Thailand," wedged between Indo-China and Burma.

Central Business Holds Its Banquet

Has France 'Gone' To Hitler? Weigh Petain's Sad Task

Hero of Verdun, Symbol of Surrender Now, Took Over Thankless Job After Armistice

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Freeman Special News Service)

The report from France that the government is considering far-reaching extension of its cooperation with Hitler's "new order," brought me a call from a distinguished French resident of New York who wanted to know if there could be any truth in this news.

He was much distressed by the thought that his country might be contemplating such a move, and obviously was hoping I would say there was nothing to the story. It was impossible to give him that satisfaction, for it seems quite likely that the Vichy government may make a move in that direction.

However, we talked the matter over and he did have a less gloomy view after an analysis of the situation.

When you first look at this proposition of the Petain government lending itself to cooperation with its hated conqueror, whose troops have their hob-nailed boots firmly on the proud country, it does strike one as an astonishing development. On further study it doesn't seem so strange. And one is inclined not to judge hastily.

In assuming the leadership of his crushed people, Marshal Petain took over a valorous but thankless task. He established himself as the symbol of surrender. It must have been a bitter thing for the hero of Verdun to so humble himself and take upon his aged shoulders the burden of representing in defeat the country which he once helped to such glorious victory.

It must be a trial for him daily to have to bow his head to the Germans in whose ears yet rings his World War challenge, "They shall not pass."

German High Command Says Axis Forces Have Opened New and Big Offensive

Rift Appears

Twenty Japanese Diet Members Quit, Story Is Censored

(By The Associated Press)

Russia's Ukraine armies were reported today to have inflicted a crushing defeat on German troops caught in a trap near Novochoerkassk, 25 miles northeast of Rostov-on-Don, while the German high command declared that Axis invasion forces had opened a new big-scale offensive.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the Germans lost thousands of men, 13 tanks, 273 trucks and many guns in the Novochoerkassk battle.

The Nazi drive in that sector has been stopped, Tass added.

A German communique pictured the Nazi armies as lunging forward once more, executing "new and successful" attacks, but the Russians said they had smashed attempts to pierce Soviet lines on the north anchor of the 200-mile Moscow defense arc as well as in the Ukraine.

A Nazi military spokesman said German bombers raked both Moscow and Leningrad during the night and left spreading fires in the Red capital.

A bulletin from the fuhrer's headquarters reported that 10,000 Russian prisoners had been captured and 171 tanks destroyed during the past three days, but it gave no details of the new push.

Soviet front-line dispatches said two German infantry regiments, supported by tanks and armored cars, had been driven off with bloody losses in repeated attempts to storm across the upper Volga river in the Kalinin sector, 95 miles north of Moscow, and the Red Army command gave this general summary of the nearly five-month-old struggle:

"Our troops are beating off the enemy attacks and destroying equipment and annihilating the manpower of the Germans."

On the southern (Ukraine) front, the Russians said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces had recaptured a number of villages and advanced from four to 12 miles—presumably in the fiercely-contested battle sector around Rostov-on-Don.

Soviet accounts declared that Field Marshal Ewald Von Kleist's southern armies were suffering severe casualties in attempts to make "rapid gains" in the Donets river basin.

In the Crimea campaign, the German high command said Nazi bombers violently attacked Russia's great Black Sea naval base at Sevastopol, blasting docks, munitions dumps and a ship in the harbor, but there was still no indication of a direct land assault against the stronghold.

The British radio said Russian troops in the Kerch sector had been "safely evacuated to the Caucasus, along with their complete equipment and war material."

Claim Not Recognized

Officially, Russia has not yet recognized the German claim to the capture of Kerch, but the Moscow radio acknowledged that Axis invasion forces estimated at 90,000 troops had cracked Kerch's defenses "at a cost of colossal losses."

Meanwhile, in London, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden briefly and cryptically disclosed that Britain was taking "military and naval action" against Finland, Rumania and Hungary.

Eden refused to elaborate, however, and informed sources interpreted the statement as referring mainly to British blockade of the countries.

Member Resigns

In Tokyo, a diet member's speech which was banned for publication and described as "improper for this session," led to the member's resignation and created a sensation in the extraordinary "crisis session" of Japan's Parliament.

Nineteen other members of the house resigned in apparent sympathy. A Tokyo dispatch telling of the incident was evidently delayed and partly censored, without explanation of what the member had said that was deemed "improper." All other speeches published in the current session have strongly supported the government's militant stand against the United States and Britain and for the Axis.

With Japan tensely awaiting the result of talks in Washington between special envoy Saburo Kurusu and United States officials, another border outbreak was reported from Manchukuo.

The meeting marks the silver anniversary of the National Automobile Dealers' Association—an organization founded during the last World War when production cuttings and a drop in sales posed a more serious, but less critical, problems. With the manufacture of new cars ordered shut off completely, a spokesman said many dealers were threatened with possible insolvency and that the jobs of an estimated 400,000 employees in garages and salesrooms were uncertain.

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—A triple investigation into the death of socially prominent Dr. Allyn King Foster Jr., was under way today after an autopsy disclosed a fractured larynx, foreign material in his throat and bronchial tubes and evidence of asphyxiation.

Dr. Foster, 37-year-old surgeon, died yesterday in a violent ward at Bellevue Hospital's psychiatric division, where he was taken last Monday after a patrolman had found him wandering hatless and coatless in a dazed condition.

The autopsy was performed yesterday at the request of the surgeon's wife, the late Elsa Margaret Nilsson of Peekskill, and the Office of the District Attorney, the medical examiner and the police began questioning hospital employees immediately afterward.

After questioning a doctor and two nurses from the hospital, and learning that Foster had to be forcibly fed and bathed, Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet said early today he believed the surgeon did not have the injuries which he died when he entered Bellevue.

Dr. Foster, assistant surgeon at the Post-Graduate and Broad Street Hospitals, was born in Cornwall, Conn., a son of Mrs. Emily Foley Foster and the late Rev. Dr. Allyn King Foster, Baptist clergyman, educator and author. He was graduated from Rush Medical School of the University of Chicago.

Kingston's First Fire Department

Was Organized in 1754 When Fire Engine Was Ordered From England

This is the sixth in a series of articles on the early history of Kingston and Ulster county. These articles, published several years ago, are reprinted at the request of principals of the local grade schools. These educators anticipate their usefulness to pupils in county history in connection with the social course, which is a correlation of history, geography and civics.

The following is taken from the files of The Freeman, dated March 16, 1934:

This year the Kingston fire department is celebrating its 180th anniversary, and it is a far cry from the early day in November, 1754, when the department was first organized with a fire engine ordered from England at a cost not to exceed 80 pounds and the present fire department's equipment—entirely motorized—totaling an expenditure of about $80,000.

Nearly two hundred years have passed into history since that day when the trustees of the little village of Kingston realized the need of fire fighting facilities, ordered a fire engine from England. As the English government long before that had prohibited the establishment of manufacturing plants in the American colonies, no fire engines of any description could be obtained here.

It was not until the spring of 1757, however, that the crude engine was received and on May 15 of that year the trustees entered into an agreement with William Eltinge to take care of the fire engine until March of the following year. For his services Eltinge received the sum of twenty shillings.

Engine Burned in 1777

The fire engine did efficient work until it was consumed in that historic day, October 16, 1777, when the British soldiers applied the torch to the village.

Village Department Organized

On April 6, 1805, the state legislature passed an act incorporating the village of Kingston, and a few months later the village directors requested the corporation to transfer the fire engine, which replaced the one burned, to them which was done and the engine housed in a building near the court house.

The village fire department was organized on October 19, 1805, with Nicholas Vanderlyn, Jr., as captain and Samuel S. Freer as lieutenant. The company numbered thirteen members which evidently was not considered an unlucky number for a fireman.

Five years later the department was reorganized and the company increased from thirteen to twenty men. Nicholas Vanderlyn, Jr., was named senior foreman and William Brink second foreman. In 1816 it was voted to expend the sum of $100 for the purchase of an additional fire engine and the department was reorganized with two companies known as Engine No. 1 of which James C. Elmdorf was captain, and Engine No. 2 with Seth Couch as captain.

The Days of the Leather Buckets

Those were the days of the leather buckets, and every household was required to keep at hand a certain number, each bucket bearing the initials of the owner. When an alarm of fire was sounded the buckets were either thrown out in front of the house for some one else to use or were carried to the fire by the household, who would help form a bucket brigade from the nearest water supply to the scene of the fire.

It was the use of these leather buckets, each holding about eight quarts of water, and the primitive fire engine that the fires which occasionally broke out were fought.

Modern Department Organized

It was not until 1848 that the modern fire department as we know it first came into existence with the organization of the Protector Engine Company, which was equipped with a hand fire engine, which was housed in an old barn on Mill street. Several years later the Lackawanna Engine Company was formed. It was presented with a hand engine by the village of Rondout.

Uptown in the village of Kingston there were four fire companies, American Engine Company No. 1, Niagara Steamer No. 2, Washington Steamer No. 3, and Excelsior Steamer No. 4, all of which were organized in the thirties and early forties.

Declined During Civil War

During the dark days of the Civil War there was a marked decrease in the membership of the fire companies, but interest gradually revived as the years passed.

In 1872 the two villages of Kingston and Rondout were incorporated under the name of Kingston, and with the incorporation of the city the fire departments were divided into two departments, known as the western department and the eastern department. That year Cornelius Burhans was chief of the western department and Augustus Hasbrouck of the eastern department.

In 1878 the city charter was amended so as to provide for one chief engineer and four assistants to be appointed by the common council. Richard Mooney served during 1878-79 as chief and was succeeded by George Weber in 1880 who served until 1882. In 1883 Mooney was again appointed chief and served until 1886 when he was succeeded by John P. Derrenbacher who served until 1890.

During the period between 1890 and 1896 those who served as chief were: Richard Mooney, William H. Kolts, James S. Winne and William H. Kolts. In 1896 the charter was again amended so that the chief would be appointed by the mayor. Those who served under appointment were William H. Kolts, Michael J. Rafferty, Charles L. Quackenbush and Rodney A. Chipp.

Agitation for Paid Department

It was during the administration of Mayor A. Wesley Thompson that agitation was started for the reorganization of the present partially paid fire department. In his annual message to the common council Mayor Thompson on January 1, 1906, stated that "sooner or later, this city will have to come to a paid or partially paid system for the fire department."

Act Authorizing Department

Thompson resigned on May 20, 1907, and was succeeded as mayor by Walter P. Crane, who was then president of the common council. It was under the administration of Mayor Crane that later in the year the state legislature passed an act creating a partially paid fire department to be governed by a board of fire commissioners to be appointed by the mayor.

Under the authority conferred by the act, Mayor Crane on August 8, 1907, appointed Benjamin J. Hornbeck, Louis A. Kolts and Charles A. Davis as members of the fire board. Subsequently the board met and organized by electing Commissioner Hornbeck as president and City Clerk John T. Cummings as clerk.

When the partially paid fire department was created Rodney A. Chipp, who was chief under the all-volunteer system, was appointed chief of the reorganized department and Joseph L. Murphy, the present chief, was appointed his deputy.

Chief Chipp served until November 1, 1924, when he retired on a pension and was succeeded by Fire Chief Murphy, who still holds office. Frederick M. Leverich, a member of the paid fire department, was appointed deputy fire chief, following his retirement.

Two Bad Fires in 1907

There is no question but the agitation for an approved fire department advocated by the late Mayor Thompson was aided considerably by two bad fires that occurred during 1907. During a terrific electrical storm on July 20 of that year, a bolt struck the big coal pockets of the Kingston Coal Company on Thomas street, which were consumed. A few weeks later on August 17, the West Shore Railroad freight house and thirty freight cars were destroyed by fire.

The Three Truck Drivers

Charles Parsells, Peter Donnelly and Charles G. Morgan were the first three paid firemen to be appointed by the fire board, and assumed their duties as drivers of the city's fire trucks. Later nine more paid firemen were added to the force. They were: James J. Brennan, James Lawrence, Arthur J. Dempsey, A. J. Bowers, Richard K. Fox, Elbert L. Soper, Harry Hornbeck and Wright Maines.

Some time later Firemen Lawrence, Dempsey and Soper resigned to become members of the Kingston police force.

Lawrence was killed in the line of duty and Dempsey and Soper are still in active service as policemen.

Only One Fatality

Since the partially paid fire department was inaugurated in Kingston there has been only one fatality among its members in the line of duty. It was a dark and cold night in February of 1919 when the department was called out to fight a brush fire in Lindsey's Woods. With only the burning brush to illuminate their path, the firemen fought the blaze under extreme difficulties, beating it out with their hands where possible and with the use of chemicals.

Lawmakers' First Conflicts Begin On Two Proposals

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—The first conflicts in New York's legislative session developed today over giving removal powers to the State Defense Council and the time to begin quarterly payments of personal income taxes.

Leaders reported Republican majority legislators increasingly critical of Governor Lehman's request the defense council be empowered to remove local officials failing to obey orders. Chief protest was, they said, that such authority could be made "a political weapon."

Accordingly, Republican legislative chiefs called for a meeting tomorrow of Senate and Assembly party members to study the governor's newest defense proposals. Previously, G.O.P. leaders asserted they agreed on "principles" of the Democratic executive's recommendations but had not committed themselves on verbiage of legislation.

Majority legislators, meanwhile, hoped to avoid, or at least delay, an intra-party squabble over selection between two conflicting bills to permit payment of state personal income taxes in quarterly installments.

The measures, sufficiently aged on legislators' desks for a vote tonight, are sponsored by Republican and Assemblymen Abbot Low Moffat, New York, and Maurice Whitney, Rensselaer county. Moffat's bill would permit the quarterly payments in 1944 on 1943 income. Whitney's would be effective this year.

Whitney contends taxpayers need the proposed relief immediately to help lighten the war's financial burden. Moffat, who also would change beginning of the fiscal year from July 1 to April 1, insists the delay is necessary to avoid a $20,000,000 revenue loss through deferring one quarterly payment beyond July 1.

Whitney maintains an expected $20,000,000 state surplus at the end of the present fiscal year would cushion the revenue loss through revising payment dates to April 15, July 15, October 15 and January 15. Presently, 50 per cent of the tax may be paid April 15, a quarter, June 15, and the remainder, October 15.

Leaders declared that if a vote on both bills is demanded by their sponsors at the night session, a recess will be taken immediately to permit a party discussion "behind the scenes." Otherwise, it was planned to defer action until the governor submits his new state budget to the legislature next Monday.

Bodies Are Found At Plane Wreck; Taken to Morgue

Las Vegas, Nev., Jan. 19 (AP)—The bodies of Carol Lombard and eight other persons among 22 killed in a mountain-top plane crash Friday night lay in a Las Vegas morgue today while men toiled through snow to bring the remains of 13 victims down from the crash scene.

The dead included Miss Lombard and her mother and two other women, the actress' press representative and 15 army fliers, in addition to the pilot and co-pilot. Recovered from the plane wreckage late yesterday were the remains of two women and seven men.

Wisps of blonde hair "and the general contour of her face" served to enable Edgar J. Mannix, vice-president of M.G.M. studios, to identify one body as that of Miss Lombard. A three-man jury, conducting a special inquest, decided that she died of injuries sustained in "the crash of a T.W.A. liner en route from Las Vegas to Los Angeles."

Another inquest will be held when all the bodies have been recovered. Actor Clark Gable, who flew here upon receiving word of the crash Friday night, remained in seclusion at a hotel. Friends said he was too numb by the shock of the death of his wife and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters, and their close friend, Studio Press Agent Otto Winkler, to talk to anyone. Unable to leave his film duties, Gable last week had asked Winkler to accompany Miss Lombard to Indianapolis where she aided in a sale of defense bonds.

Spencer Tracy, a close friend of the actor, drove alone to Las Vegas Saturday and was expected to accompany him back to Hollywood. Studio officials in Los Angeles were making arrangements for a double funeral for Miss Lombard and her mother, to be held probably Wednesday or Thursday.

Mrs. Carr Pleads No Defense Today In Jersey Court

Newark, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP)—Mrs. Amelia Everts Carr, 66, churchwoman whose police records revealed as a confidence woman with a half century record, threw herself upon the mercy of the Essex county court today by pleading no defense to a charge of defrauding an Essex county woman of $4,700.

Judge Daniel Brennan of the Court of Oyer and Terminer reminded the slightly nervous defendant that her technical plea of no defense was tantamount to an admission of guilt. He set January 28 for sentencing.

James L. McKenna, assistant prosecutor, told the court that the specific charges were three allegations that Mrs. Carr obtained a total of $4,700 from Mrs. Mabel Burnett, Newark widow.

McKenna asked Mrs. Carr if she wished to withdraw a plea of innocent and enter a plea of no defense. Mrs. Carr broke in to comment, "at no time did I enter a plea of not guilty."

Prosecutor William A. Wachenfeld said the defendant had advised him that she decided to waive jury trial so her fellow churchwomen would not have "a chance to come down and gloat over my troubles." She is the wife of the chairman of the trustees of the Roseville Methodist Church.

She was returned to the Essex county jail and her bail of $50,000 continued.

British Arrest U Saw for Plotting To Yield to Japs

London, Jan. 19 (AP)—Premier U Saw of Burma, who quit London last November, is a hard core of the Japanese, according to a statement issued today by the British government.

An official announcement today indicated seizure of the round-faced, skirt-wearing little oriental had backed a conspiracy to hand over the Japanese the British Asiatic possession which holds a vital role in the defense of Singapore.

This statement, issued from No. 10 Downing street, Prime Minister Churchill's official residence, said U Saw had been "in contact" with the Japanese since the outbreak of war in the Pacific.

"This fact has been confirmed by his own admission," the statement added. "His majesty's government accordingly has been compelled to detain him and it will not be possible to permit him to return to Burma."

Just where U Saw was taken into custody was not disclosed. He went to Washington from London and was in Hawaii on his way back home when the Japanese started the war in the Pacific. This forced him to reverse his journey.

Breathing defiance, U Saw declared after his conferences here with Churchill that his trip "was not satisfactory and not commensurate with the amount of risk I have taken in coming to England."

"We would rather trust the Devil we know than the Devil we don't know," he added. "When I get back to Burma I shall have to say that Britain has nothing to give you, in which case . . ."

Fight Develops For Singapore

mentary debate on Asiatic reserves.

The Prime Minister may make a war strategy statement next week. He returned from conferences in Washington and Ottawa only Saturday.

Churchill was reported engaged all day in conferences foreshadowing some changes in the war organization, but most London quarters were now agreed that he should shakeup in the cabinet itself was imminent.

Some member of parliament, Edgar Louis Granville, declared he would move at the next sitting of Commons for adjournment "to discuss the urgent state of affairs with regard to the defense of Singapore and Malaya."

The Japanese threw troops at the Pownall Line sector held by the Australians in Johore State some 110 miles north of Singapore and attempted their now familiar flanking landings on the western Johore coast.

Domei, Japanese news agency, broadcast from Tokyo a report that the Japanese had captured Pontian Besar, 25 miles from Singapore.

The British Far East Command acknowledged today that the Japanese had pushed farther southward in the coastal belt of the Muar river area, some 90 miles from Singapore, and spoke of Japanese pressure on the Segamat front.

Segamat, on the main railway to Singapore, is about 15 miles below Gemas and about 95 miles from Singapore.

The Australians and British earlier said they had smashed landing parties on the west Malayan coast.

It was jungle warfare by separate groups instead of massed battalions like those of Russia and Africa and the Japanese were finding the Australians tough customers indeed.

What virtually amounted to an order of the day, Major General Gordon Bennett, leader of the jungle-trained and high-spirited Australians, told his men that "We've got to go out after the Japanese and get them or else they'll get us."

He discarded any thought of a waiting game and called for aggressive action.

His artillery pounded the Japanese in the sector where between 800 and 1,000 Japanese were killed in an Australian ambush last week.

Along the coast, Australians helped an Indian force mop up the Japanese who gained a temporary foothold at the mouth of the Muar river, 90 miles northwest of Singapore Island, the combined forces destroying eight enemy tanks and sending the remnants of the Japanese force hunting for cover in the rubber trees. Singapore itself took a beating from Japanese planes Sunday.

The British acknowledged for the first time that raiders damaged the naval base area, setting fire to fuel oil.

The Japanese in Tokyo said their bombs had damaged the headquarters of the British Far Eastern command.

The British called up more men to defend Singapore.

All European male Britons under 41 not already serving in the fighting forces were ordered to register Wednesday for military duty.

A gallant band of Americans and Filipinos was contributing materially to the united nations defense of Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies by holding in check a large army of Japanese on Luzon Island but there seemed no doubt that its situation was deteriorating.

Police Chief Mahlon Rainbolt of Bedford reported the man: Borrowed a car from a Seymour agency to demonstrate to his wife, drove it to Bedford and abandoned it.

Easily Scared
Tocsin, Ind.—Cracksmen who tried to rob the safe of the Tocsin Grain and Lumber Company now know better than to try to pull a job in a town with a name like this.

Company Manager Garth Woodward, seeing the lights of their automobile, turned on his porch light and, leaving the safe unopened, they fled with only $3 in pennies from vending machines.

Change Tires Here
Salt Lake City—The car bumped over a west side railroad crossing. Two tires went "whew!" and collapsed.

Came another motorist and another "whew!" and another and another—well, it happened eight times before police arrived to clear up traffic.

A railroad spike jutting into the tire rut from a cross tie was blamed.

Meet Army's First Selectee - One Year After

If He Had His Druthers, He'Druther Not Be There

By FRANK CAREY

Fort Devens, Mass.—The first man to be inducted into the nation's training forces just a year ago yesterday has no hankering to be a general. He wants to don his civies again and become a commercial artist.

"I'm a civilian at heart," says Private First Class John Edward Lawton, 22, of Everett. "Army life is all right, and I've learned some valuable lessons, but I don't think I'm exactly cut out for it, and I don't think I'd want it as a lifetime job."

The slender, dark-haired youth who theoretically was the initial building stone for the first peacetime selective service army in the history of the United States, says his year in camp "hasn't been a bad experience at all."

And how does he feel about the war?

"I don't want to get in it," he said quietly, "but who the heck does?"

Lawton was one of the first to volunteer to take a year of service immediately. When the time came for mustering the selectees, the matter of New England time, and the physical "freaking" of four candidates ahead of him made Lawton the first man in the country to be accepted.

His experiences at Devens have been varied, and when the time comes for him to leave (that's up to Uncle Sam), he will have given the Army something to remember him by—particularly the major on whose trousers Lawton spilled a glass of milk.

He "decorated" the major while

War Boss Nelson Gets Things Done

Testifies

Confers (With Vicepresident Wallace)

AP Feature Service

Several million American farmers and their families are already pretty well acquainted with Donald M. Nelson—at least with his works—but the new boss of the nation's war production may dwell a bit of introduction to city dwellers.

A standard piece of literature in farms and small towns is the Sears, Roebuck & Company catalogue. Nelson was executive vice-president of the mail-order house until the government called him in. Many a rural parlor, sitting room and barn is equipped with the wares he sold.

Just Another Dub

Nelson's one hobby is golf. He dubs around in about 100 and of course he uses Sears, Roebuck golf balls. The shortage of rubber and golf balls won't bother him much for he hasn't time now for golfing. Although he does get out occasionally for a bit of night clubbing.

If you get up bright, and early, you might spot him some morning before 7 toodling to work in a big Cadillac sedan. Bargain note: He bought the Cadillac second hand from Bill Knudsen, head of OPM who probably bought the car brand new from General Motors when he was chairman of the board there.

Nelson's a natural born bargain hunter and any way you look at it, he's a first class bargain for the United Nations. For with the United States serving as the arsenal for the battle against the Axis, upon Nelson's direction of war production throughout this country will depend the success of the war in Europe, Asia and on the seas.

front pages followed the typically American "small-town boy-makes-good" pattern, he set many precedents on his way to Washington from Hannibal, Mo., where he was born 54 years ago.

He is a New Deal Democrat and before the emergency, drew $75,000 a year as executive vice-president of Sears, Roebuck. Still a New Deal Democrat, he talked turkey to the National Association of Manufacturers and made them listen when he warned last month that present production was not "enough." "If we are to beat Hitler," he said, "we will have to double the present output."

Bargain hunting was his business and he carried over to government purchasing the art of clipping corners and making every penny work overtime for defense.

Tough on Fronteers

They tell how he caught a would-be profiteer who bought up the entire supply of one type of cotton and was waiting to gouge the Army. Nelson had the Army change its specifications and the profiteer was left holding the cotton.

He uses in Army and Navy purchasing the stager system he developed at Sears, Roebuck's Chicago office. There he placed his textile orders during the slack seasons; he got a much better price and the industry kept busy the year round.

He does the same with government purchases—except that now he, the taxpayers, are getting the advantage of his bargain basement shopping skill.

A Pipe Smoker

Eighteen hours a day he puffs at his collection of pipes, bucks his six-foot, 200-pound bulk through the red tape and inertia and gets things done. You don't hear much of him in this city of inter-office feuds because he doesn't lose his temper.

"The man who loses his temper always loses the argument," the bespectacled redhead smiles. But don't make the mistake of thinking he is soft. He isn't, his friends

NELSONISMS

(FROM RECENT SPEECHES)

"Our best and quickest way out of the trouble we are in is to plunge straight ahead and double everything we have done."

"This defense program isn't any WPA program, a joyride for industry. We are not playing for marbles. It's a life and death struggle. We are going to need the labor of every available worker and every machine that can be used in the land. Hitler is going to win unless we deny ourselves everything that we can possibly deny ourselves."

"The future status of the commercial banking system will in a large part be influenced by the manner in which our local banks rise to meet this challenge of providing total finance for total defense."

"If we are to beat Hitler, we will have to double the present output."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New Haven, Conn.—A restaurant manager, hearing screams and great commotion at the rear of the establishment where live seafood was kept, found a man, his hand firmly gripped by one of many lobsters in a packing case.

Police booked the man on a charge of theft.

A Horse! A Horse!

Dodge City, Kas.—If the tire and auto shortage forces a return to the horse and buggy, it may be hard on the farm folk in Ford county.

The last nose count by the assessor shows an average of about three-fourths of a horse to the farm.

Tractors average one and a half to the farm but most of them are rubber tired.

He's won steadily since he worked his way through high school and the University of Missouri and took a job in Sears, Roebuck chemistry testing laboratory so he could go back for his doctorate. "He planned to be a chemistry professor but instead he was pushed rapidly upstairs through the mail-order house organization."

From there to the NRA and a short hitch in the Commerce Department was just a step. Then he was called back in June, 1940, to coordinate defense purchasing. When OPM started the parade of wartime initials through the capital, he headed its purchasing division.

SPAB—another set of initials meaning Supply, Priorities and Allocation Board—was set up with him as its head. Last year President Roosevelt increased his powers following reports that the Army and Navy opposed centralization of purchasing in his hands.

And now he's boss of production and procurement. Do you have a battleship you want to sell the Navy? Or a Civil War rifle, or do you manufacture neckties for soldiers? See Nelson. You'll find him in his office any morning after 7 o'clock. Or you can come back later and catch him at a breakfast conference down in the cafeteria. He'll take care of you.

Growing Colored Lumber By Dyeing Living Trees

Changing birch, beech and maple trees from their sober natural colors into almost every color of the rainbow right where they grow in the woods has been accomplished at Machias, Maine, by Herr Fritz von Behr and his assistants at the University of Maine working with the Machias Lumber company.

The experiments that enlist chemistry to improve on nature are still carried on about 35 miles inside the woods near this Maine town and one of the most spectacular transformations is that of an ancient beech tree that has been changed from its natural gray to a vivid lavender in four days.

Half-way up the trunk of this patriarch of the woods, the tree-dyers hung a large, galvanized-iron garbage can filled with a dye made by a secret process known only to Mr. Von Behr. From this can a rubber tube led down to an ordinary gas jet valve that was stuck into a hole in the trunk. Four cork stoppers were also placed in holes around the base of the tree. These holes acted as a reservoir for dye.

Almost immediately after the coloring solution is injected, the sap begins carrying it to the top-most branches and in the case of a smaller tree the dyeing process is complete in about two days. Large trees take about four.

By this process, beech can be turned into "rosewood" and yellow birch into "mahogany" that defies detection, the Maine scientist says, and expert lumber men agree the dyeing saves waste in cutting.

Science Has Proved The Egg Came First

Science has definitely answered the ancient gag "Which came first, the hen or the egg?" with the observation that in the earliest stages of evolution, all living forms were practically eggs.

Birds don't build nests and lay eggs because they fly, they learned to fly because they had previously developed the habit of laying eggs. Animals which bring their young to a comparatively advanced state of development before birth find flying difficult—only bats being the rule-proving exception.

We mammals like to think we are smarter and more capable than any other forms of life, so naturally we take credit for the bat's amazing cleverness in beating birds at their own game.

We brag about the submarine-dwelling whale, dominant over all creatures of the ocean. We point with pride to the intelligent seals, which can catch almost any fish that swims.

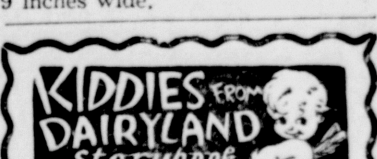

On land, of course, mammals have long been dominant. The pint sized mongoose seeks out and slays the enormous and poisonous cobra. A prototype of the mongoose overcame the mighty dinosaur by the simple expedient of eating its eggs.

Gasoline From Peanut Oil

Do you realize that gasoline can be made of peanut oil? Or cheese? Or shaving cream and lipstick? During the last war glycerine was a by-product. This year a wool-like fabric from peanut meal made its appearance, as sound as any homespun. More than 300 items altogether have been produced from peanuts, everything from milk to shoe polish.

Most of this research has been done by one man, George Washington Carver, the great colored scientist and inventor, whose laboratories are in Tuskegee, Ala. Few of them have ever been put out commercially.

THANKS A LOT

Thanksgiving Day should be just that—a day for all of us to take ourselves in hand and gently but firmly tell ourselves and each other how fortunate we are. A day to "snap out of it" and count our blessings and admit that we're probably better off than we deserve to be.

For when we get right down to reality, and peel off our customary national egotism, are we really so much finer and nobler than the rest of the nations? We're superior, of course—any of us can grant that. But in honest analysis we may admit that about half of our good fortune has been dumb luck.

And right now we seem to be in a mental and emotional mess because we're afraid that may be our luck is changing. We can see, as in a glass darkly, that we've come to a pass where we have a big, hard and unexpected job to do, and gosh, how we dread it!

But the job has to be done. And we're able to do it. And we will do it, though with a rather unnecessary amount of griping and arguing. We should thank God today not only because we have been preserved so far, but because we now have a rare opportunity to help Him in bringing this crazy word back to sanity and friendly cooperation.

WASTED TIME

Time, says Maj. George Fielding Eliot, "is the ally of the people who know how to use it."

British and French leaders who thought time was their ally between September 1939 and May 1940 lost their advantage through inaction. The Germans, for whom that period was thought to be disastrous, made such effective use of time that it became their ally instead of their enemy.

How many times, by how many different nations, must this lesson be learned only through bitter experience?

A GOLDFISH FEAST

This is a perilous time for fishes as well as other phases of our current civilization. In Windsor, Ont., across the river from Detroit, workmen were carefully removing 2,000 beautiful goldfish from a city pool. Suddenly a flock of 100 hungry sea gulls swooped down like the fabled Harpies and began gobbling up those fish.

The fact that the fish were municipal property meant nothing to the gulls. Neither did the protective efforts of workmen. And if the gulls happened to observe that the fish were more than ordinarily attractive, that merely whetted their appetites. They broke human law without compunction. They had legal protection, too, because gulls as scavengers are sacred. And they had a superior law of their own, which teaches them to go and take what they require in order to carry on their system.

It seemed, though, curiously like a Nazi operation.

BIBLE GARDENS

Some of us consider our gardens very modern, but there may not be much about them that is really new. And it is surprising how our flower gardens resemble those mentioned in the Bible. In a new book on this theme, "Bible Plants for American Gardens," Eleanor Anthony King says that people 2,000 or 3,000 years ago were planting much the same kinds of vines and aromatic shrubs that we plant today. They were familiar with anemones, narcissus, hyacinths, morning glories, pinks, geraniums, tulips, honeysuckles, lupines, poppies, and so on, just as we are.

"The Bible is a book of gardens," says the author. "It is with a garden that Genesis begins, and with a vision of trees bearing fruit that the book of Revelation ends." When the Children of Israel were in bondage, they comforted themselves with the thought that in the Promised Land every one could have his own garden and sit under his own vine and fig tree.

"Plants play a deep and significant role in the Bible," she continues. "As they clothe the land of Palestine with rich and luxuriant verdure, they clothe the thoughts and speech of the prophets and leaders of the land with rich imagery and poetry. Now at then, seeds sprout, trees give their shade, vine branches depend upon the stem, and so familiar in our daily speech are the parables of nature that we do not realize, until we pursue the plant passages of the Bible, how much our thinking depends upon these symbols."

LEADERS AND HERDS

"We are witnessing the deflation of the human person," says Anne O'Hare McCormick of the New York Times in a public address. "We are going through a convulsion unique in the world's chronicle. Whatever happens, the leaders will soon loom larger in history than Napoleon, Caesar, Alexander and Tamerlane."

This trend seems to have been foreseen by the poet Tennyson nearly three generations ago when he wrote that "the individual withers and the world is more and more." But could he have imagined such domination as is exercised today over vast masses of people by men like Hitler and Stalin?

Can it be that this vast distance between leaders and followers is to be the rule from now on? That a few strong men, or merely one or two, are to rule the world, with the vast resources of modern science and technology at their command and all the rest of us plant tools in their hands?

We don't like to think so. We prefer to believe in a future world of free individuals. But men may have to struggle more than ever to hold their freedom.

 RINGWORM OF THE FEET

Some years ago ringworm of the feet—athlete's foot—was practically unknown. Today, it is estimated that almost half the adult population suffer more or less with this ailment. The spread of this infection is believed due to the fact that swimming pools and shower baths are in such general use in golf, tennis, and athletic clubs.

It is a discouraging ailment in that just when the skin becomes clear and the organisms apparently destroyed, another patch will appear between the toes or on the sole of the foot. The reason for this new or fresh attack is that these yeastlike organisms have not been killed but have been hiding safely under the upper layer of the skin between the toes.

Dr. Oliver S. Ormsby, Chicago, in the New England Journal of Medicine, states that it is heat and moisture that stir these vegetable organisms into life and causes the symptoms to reappear.

The prevention treatment, first started in Buffalo some years ago, is placing a tub containing a 1 per cent solution of sodium hypochlorite directly in the path of swimmers and bathers as they go and come from showers and pool.

Sterilizing of the shoes, socks, rugs and carpets is accomplished by fumigating them with a 2 per cent solution of formaldehyde. Drying the feet well, particularly between the toes, and applying stearate of zinc dusting powder, prevents moisture which causes the organisms to multiply.

The treatment suggested by Dr. Ormsby is soaking the feet in a hot 1 to 2,000 solution of potassium permanganate two or three times daily. Between soaks soothing ointments containing naftalan or ichthyol, or both, may be used.

As the conditions improve, an ointment containing salicylic and benzoic acids (Whitfield's ointment as made up by your druggist) is applied every night or every other night. After the skin has stopped peeling, a dusting powder of magnesium carbonate, boric acid and powdered talcum is applied around and beneath the nails and between toes to prevent any growth of the yeast organisms.

A GUEST FOR THANKSGIVING!

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Behind the scenes in congressional debate on revision of the neutrality bill, an interesting little movement developed which may have far-reaching effect.

The most effective way of getting things accomplished in our form of government is by a bit of horse-trading. Recently members in both Houses threw out hints that they would no longer string along with the administration on foreign policy and national defense unless something were done to straighten out a few domestic messes—principally national defense strikes and non-defense economies.

Neither Senator Byrd of Virginia nor Tydings of Maryland, has been too friendly with the administration, but both have for the most part, strung along and even fought for national defense. Now they have intimated publicly that they will no longer be interested in furthering administration foreign policy legislation until the White House gives the green light to measures designed to clean up internal affairs.

In the House, Representative Cox of Georgia, strongly in favor of revising the neutrality act, told the rules committee that Congress ought to run up the stop sign to all such legislation until something is done about strikes impeding national defense production.

These public pronouncements aren't the only ones. In the cloakrooms and in private office sessions, other members of Congress have stated baldly that non-defense economies and some form of legislation to curb strikes have to be the next order of business.

There are two other important straws in the wind: (1) "Temporary" deferment by the House Ways and Means committee of administration's new five billion tax bill; and (2) the rapidly increasing number of bills to curb strikes that are piling up in the hoppers in both houses.

Although deferment of consid-

Roosevelt Shows Necessary Restraint in Letting Labor Trouble Simmer Before Making Decision

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 19.—Sometimes President Roosevelt likes to let situations simmer. It is easy enough to grow emotional and begin calling names. It is harder to restrain oneself and take a long look ahead with the calm deliberation that produces a public policy instead of a petty quarrel.

While clashing personalities are there, this is not a personal controversy between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Lewis. The benefit of sincere conviction and deep-seated purpose may be attributed to the head of the mine workers union as well as to the President, each in his conception of what should be proper labor policy in a crisis.

But he is a superficial observer who believes that the labor situation is either the outgrowth of a conflict of persons or the result of a mere difference of conception between the mine workers union and the government of the United States as to the scope of its rights.

The fundamental of the present battle is a reaching for monopoly power by a veteran labor union which has been encouraged by the administration's own policy to believe that collective bargaining is an all-pervasive instrument for the intensification of labor's economic power.

Under a system of collectivism, such as prevails in the Soviet Union, the workers' committees are all powerful and in America there are many labor dictators who think that capitalism and private initiative should be regulated and all the corresponding powers awarded to the workers groups.

Today, the President, who has tolerated the collectivist theory, is face to face with its implications and he can hardly say irritable or lose his temper over a system that has been building up for many years with the friendly and sympathetic support of his own party in Congress. Likewise, from the beginning of the present war era, the President or his cabinet officers have repeatedly said that everybody else must make sacrifices but "labor's social gains" must not be lost. This is a doctrine of "labor as usual" which conflicts with "business as usual" in time of war. There is, moreover, a tendency in going over to make management the scapegoat on everything. But industrial production depends on both labor and management. Union labor today is slow to realize that it must make concessions and that the right to strike in war time is really a right of rebellion. This is a sacred right, to be sure, but it is exercised only if the government is tyrannical or grossly wronged. Labor, on the other hand, professes to be anxious to beat Hitler and prevent Hitlerism, so its sincerity is open to question if it allows the right to strike to supersede the right to produce goods.

Palpably a blunder, for instance, is the way John L. Lewis lets the miners in the commercial coal areas go out on sympathetic strike. It is nonsense to say these are spontaneous demonstrations. They are plain violations of the Appalachian agreement or else they are wildcat strikes which Mr. Lewis reveals himself unable to control.

Mr. Lewis cannot win against the government of the United States. He has been defeated by the government before. But Mr. Roosevelt is not going to use troops and physical force to persuade Mr. Lewis. He is going to use the majesty of the law itself which in a national emergency must protect the public interest.

The public interest today is against interruption of the national defense program. Where a dispute occurs and a governmental agency has issued its opinion as to which is right or wrong, it doesn't matter in ordinary times if such a ruling is ignored unless, of course, there is a penalty attached. This week, on the other hand, since mediation has been carried on and a judgment rendered, the public interest requires that the ruling be obeyed. Congress is considering legislation to terminate strikes on defense work. It probably was a mistake in the first place for the President to assume that honeyed words or eloquent pleas would move the labor bosses who have become dictators with the aid of the Wagner law. Whatever may be the consequences of an economic conflict in normal times when no protest strikes have disastrous results, the fact that strikes cannot be tolerated today. The American people want them stopped and the Congress, as the elected representative of the people, has the power to put a stop to them. The President has set in motion the machinery. Legislative committees are meeting already. It is the only way to deal with anybody's defiance of the public interest where there is no law on the statute books to express the public will. Mr. Roosevelt has issued no angry rebuffs and used no denunciatory language. With commendable restraint, he has merely sent word to the capitol that the mines must be kept open. Before another fortnight has passed, there will be law to deal with the situation and when protest strikes are called the first anti-labor legislation under the New Deal not by the names of its authors but by the names of those who so far forgot labor's true interests and greedily reached for the moon at a time when death, starvation, sacrifice and economic restriction are the rule in a war-torn world.

From time immemorial has been the sin that has defeated those who have overreached themselves. Greed in a national crisis has begun to spell the beginning of the end of labor union monopolies in America.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JANUARY 19, 1942.

MECHANICS

The mechanic has come into his own at last. It was destined to be so from the time when Ben Franklin started tinkering. Ben was born January 17, 1706, and started early on his inventive career. Moreover, any American who is ignorant of Mark Twain's "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" owes himself a treat, and should read it to get into tune with the times. For we're certainly going to do a lot of plain and fancy tinkering in this good old Gadget Land from now on.

Some of us have already begun to realize it, as we run our old cars into the shops where grease-smears and keen-eyed men give 'em the once-over and plunge zestfully into the renovation job. If there are to be no more new cars for the duration, we've got to get along with the old ones. Repair men are getting plenty of such work and even lining up with waiting lists. Here is luck for the automobile mechanics, anyway, and a lot of jobless salesmen who know their mechanical stuff may be getting into that line.

The intelligence and resourcefulness of these modern mechanics who came with the Machine Age is a revelation to a mere Master of Arts or banker or business man. How they do know their stuff! And it isn't merely "brains in their hands," either. It's incredible what they can tell the haughty patrons who bring 'em jobs to do, when they condescend to take a few minutes off and talk about things in general. It's mainly the mechanics who run this country, and they should get more credit for it.

SOME HARD TRUTH

It's well to have the truth rubbed into us occasionally, no matter how much it hurts. And we're getting it now. One of the first installments comes from Wendell Willkie.

We Americans, he says, are "paying the price of our worship of expediency, our endless seeking of the easy way out. We will be doing our job now the hard way because we have so long sought the easy way."

We evaded responsibility at home and abroad. We refused to bear our share of the world's burdens and thought we could get along all right even if everybody else went under. We refused to uphold the right and crack down on the wrong. We became the spoiled brat of this poor old world. So we finally got our inevitable "come-uppance". Fate or Nature, or maybe God himself, finally cracked down on us. And it came so hard that we're lucky not to have cracked up. Now we have started paying for our cosmic selfishness and pride, and we shall pay to the last dollar, with compound interest.

We, who thought we were so smart, should have known how it would end. It's all writ ten down, clearly and in a hundred different ways, in a great old Book that most of us have ceased to read because we thought we didn't need it any more. While we're making our payments, it may be just as well to get acquainted with that Book again. We may understand it better from now on.

"IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE"

What does it feel like to lose house and home, position and family, to save only one's life when leaving one's native land for ever? Many thousands have had this experience since Hitler came to power. We can guess how they felt when the blow actually struck them. But, even more important, how did they feel when the blow was about to fall?

The answer may be found in studies recently made by some Harvard social scientists, who systematically collected and analyzed two hundred life-histories of refugees from Germany. The result is astounding. Not one believed that anything unpleasant was going to happen. The anti-Jewish decrees were mere window-dressing, in their opinion; not meant to be enforced, or at least not to be enforced on them. When the worst did occur, when their friends and neighbors were robbed, beaten, imprisoned, killed, they still pretended that nothing important was happening. Their customary routine surely would be safe.

This dangerous reluctance to face new facts does not threaten Germans alone. Some of us have not yet realized that, for all of us, life here is now transformed. The year 1942 will be like no year that we have hitherto seen. Let us have imagination and courage to face it squarely.

CAR ECONOMY

It's double, double, toil and trouble, in a hundred different ways now. But are Americans down-hearted? Not so you can notice it. They're solving a lot of troubles now by doubling up in various ways. Here's an example in the realm of transportation.

Four friends living in the suburbs and working in town have simplified their problem. Instead of each man driving his car into the city every day, they take turns. One man drives his car and the other three ride with him. Next day a second man takes his car with the other fellows in it, and so on with the third and fourth. This takes only one-fourth of the usual driving and gas consumption and general wear and tear, and their cars will last three or four times as long.

It's very simple and sensible, and there will be a lot of such doubling or tripling and quadrupling from now on. Nobody will be ashamed of it. They'll all be proud of their economy and team-work, and there will be a fine by-product of sociability.

Public dance halls in some of our cities are giving way to bowling alleys. This is an unforeseen effect of the war. The reason is that young men are getting scarce and bowling is more of an all-the-family diversion. The war will bring other changes in recreation, also.

A word to remember from 1941: "There is not enough darkness in all the world to put out the light of one small candle"—Cecil Roberts in Good Housekeeping.

The last war made it allowable for men to wear wrist-watches. What feminine privilege will they gain from World War II?

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

SLEEP

For many months a New York store has kept a full window display of articles that help one to sleep. There are ear plugs to keep out noise, a dark satin cloth to place over the eyes to keep out the light, pillows shaped to raise the head but allow the shoulders to remain flat and off the pillow itself, a special firm but yielding mattress to support the body evenly, patent ventilators, warm but light bed coverings and perhaps fifty in all 'helps to sleep.

Now these 'helps' must be needed or they would not be displayed on this prominent corner and for such a long time. Noise, light, uncomfortable bedding, poor ventilation, can all interfere with sleep. However, I often wonder what a man or woman who works hard physically all day thinks of these helps and of the kind of individuals who need such articles to help them get a good night's rest. Unless they have a pain or are worried, these hard working individuals need no helps to get sufficient sleep.

The point is that most of us do not tire our bodies enough by work or exercise to cause the body to ask for or demand sleep.

Added to this lack of exercise is the fact that man though an animal is a thinking animal. If he did not think he would go off to sleep naturally and when his tired body became rested he would wake up again.

To induce sleep, all thinking of an exciting nature or the making of important plans must be avoided. In addition, anything that arouses or stimulates the action of eyes and ears must be avoided.

"Choosing a dark, quiet room as a place to sleep and closing the eyelids lessens the activity of the eyes and ears—sight and hearing. Changing to night apparel and the use of comfortable beds helps reduce the sensation of touch."

Finally, by lying with arms and legs slightly bent, there is no 'pull' or tenseness of muscles and the body is relaxed. Relaxation of muscles induces relaxation of nerves. Relaxation of nerves—no contact with the world—brings on sleep.

Research workers have found that this relaxed condition is 80 per cent as helpful as sleep itself from the standpoint of heartbeat, blood pressure and body temperature.

GOUTER—Simple and Severe

There are two types of gout—enlargement of the thyroid gland in the neck. One is simple but the other requires careful treatment. Send today to Dr. Barton's new booklet on this subject entitled "Gout—Simple and Severe" (No. 112). Enclose ten cents with your request and mail it to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman.

INSEPARABLE!

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The Capital in wartime.

To see the gang that assembles to skate on the Reflecting Pool these days and nights, you would never think Washington had a care in the world.

I doubt if there's another ice rink anywhere like the Reflecting Pool. You can stand at one end and say "I'll race you from the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial."

One of the bright young men who cover "the Hill" set out the other day to try to find some new bill that didn't have a thing to do with the war. After diligent search he came on "A bill to appropriate funds to provide for the educational attainment of persons 17 years of age or over, having less than a fourth grade education."

His shout of "Eureka!" died on his lips for the next phrase was, "For the purpose of facilitating the National Defense." It is, too. It's a measure designed to raise the educational status of boys who have been deferred in the draft for failure to meet its comparatively mild educational standards.

Sixty-two bills and some minutes later, he arrived at "H. R. 6332." It looked like a cinch. It was a bill to change the foundations of the Chickamauga-Chatanooga National Park in Tennessee and Georgia. A closer scrutiny let that down with a plip, too. That's a military reservation.

As a matter of fact this complete occupation with war problems and policies should show how thoroughly Congress and Washington has taken over the problem in hand.

In one week of solid sessions, only twice did Congress extend itself in the Congressional Record Index on any matters not pertaining to the war.

You'll have to do a lot of digging to find any one who can remember when Congress has stayed so solidly on one track so long.

A unique federal office is the Home Listing Office. It has been set up to find any one who is now setting up on Post Square in the heart of the government building belt.

The idea is to help newcomers to Washington, particularly government employees, get located. For some time now it has employed 20 persons and is locating homes for incoming flood at the rate of 100 a day.

Nobody will deny that plenty of folk in Washington are working their heads off. However, one of the government personnel experts tells me that after as thorough a survey as is possible to make, the estimates that only one-third of the 200,000-odd government employees here are working more than the regulation 39-hour week.

Washingtonians are betting that the shake-up in our present production set-up will be drastic and a good many are adding the prediction that at the end of the new shakedown, Milo Perkins will be way up there. Perkins is now director of the economic warfare board and administrator of surplus marketing in the Agriculture Department.

The story always told about Perkins coming to Washington is one of those things. In the early days of the new deal, he is supposed to have written several letters of suggestion to the then Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace. Wallace hired him sight unseen to help in putting over the big farm program. He has been at it ever since and always on the up and up.

Washington is going through another case of transportation jitters, brought on principally by the curtailment of car and tire sales. From clerks to cabinet members Capitalites depend heavily on their taxis.

In spite of the complaints of taxi drivers a few months ago that they couldn't make a dime out of the business, there has been a noticeable lack of hacks during rush hours of late. Now they are talking about a pick-up jitney service during those hours.

C.I.O. and A.F.L. Merger Would Be Second Stage of Labor Government on Huge Scale
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 19.—Indications are that the merger of the C.I.O. and the A. F. of L., now being discussed, will be the beginning of a second stage of labor super-government made possible by the legalizing of compulsory collective bargaining under the Wagner act. The second stage involves compulsory unionization through closed shop, union shop or maintenance of membership devices, any one or all of which are to be sought now through pressure on the Roosevelt administration by a labor group, numerically and politically the most powerful in all our history.

Pearl Harbor's tragedy ended any possible public sympathy for strikes or work stoppages. The record of industrial peace since December 7th has been excellent. It has introduced, on the other hand, no stoppage of labor's armaments. A change in strategy, however, has become necessary.

No longer will the jurisdictional strike or rivalry between C.I.O. and A. F. of L. organizers as a cause of labor disturbance be tolerated. The A. F. of L.-C.I.O. merger would end all this and make possible a concentration on other more important objectives.

The first and foremost objective by labor is to get control of the offices or bureaus or agencies in government that award or allot defense contracts. This would mean a chance to persuade non-union or even union employers to accept compulsory unionization plans and it would mean a tremendous increase in the power of national unions and locals to sell their members the idea of the influence of the unions in obtaining work. Some new reason for unionization besides the getting of higher wages has to be developed. And the C.I.O. has gotten more publicity in that direction than any other organization by means of its industry-council plans.

These plans are by no means confined to the auto industry where the Reuther scheme was first promulgated. There are C.I.O. industry-labor council plans for almost every basic industry, including steel, copper, lumber, aluminum. Each council would create regional and local machinery for the federal government would be asked to establish a national defense board to set forth rules and regulations governing the industry councils. The so-called parent of all the industry-labor council plans—the Murray plan provides:

"All legal and executive authority must be delegated to the councils for the purpose of carrying out the task for which the councils have the responsibility for fulfillment."

These plans in some respects resemble Communism and in some

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

After trouncing the baseball team of the Poughkeepsie post office department to the tune of 6 to 2 at the Kingston Fair Grounds on September 27, 1923, the members of the Kingston post office department entertained the visitors at a banquet at Golden Rule Inn.

Jack Robins tossed them over for Kingston during the ball game with Bill Newkirk behind the plate. The other Kingston players were Johnston, Schwab, Hess, Palisi, Wheeler, Delaney and Smith.

At the banquet Bill Newkirk presided as master of ceremonies and introduced Jack Palisi who sang a solo as did Letter Carrier Harold Drautz. Poughkeepsie, not to be outdone in the vocal line, introduced some of its songsters, who made a big hit.

The entertainment was closed with Fred L. Van Deusen, well known local magician, with some of his magical stunts and illusions.

All in all it was a big day and night for Uncle Sam's mailmen. And speaking of entertainment I recall that in September, 1923, the silent movie, "The Covered Wagon," was shown at the old Kingston Opera House. The price of admission ranged from 35 cents to $1.65, including the tax, and all performances were well attended.

I also recall that the Autobus Owners' Association came into existence at a meeting of the bus operators held in the city hall on Friday evening, September 21, 1923.

The organization was formed as the outcome of a suggestion advanced by Alderman William B. Martin, chairman of the bus committee of the Common Council.

It was planned to make an effort to get every bus line owner and operator to become a member of the new organization.

Fred J. Spinnaker, of Port Jervis, was elected the first president of the association, and Jesse Van Kleeck was chosen as secretary, and Ernest J. Ritch as treasurer.

The idea back of the organization, as I recall it, was to have an association of bus operators formed so that when matters affecting the operation of bus lines came up before the bus committee there would be an organization ready to discuss the questions that arose with the committee before any definite report was made to the Common Council.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Jan. 17.—The annual meeting of the Woodstock Mutual Fire Insurance Association will be held at their offices here on the morning of Tuesday, January 20. After the regular meeting there will be a meeting of the directors of the association.

Woodstock is sharing in the drive for books for the camps and POWs are displayed throughout the village and such volumes as the public is to contribute. Recently a list was issued stating which subjects were the most desired.

His own home town notes with much satisfaction the fact that Kees Van Der Loo, up to a short time ago employed here by Heckroth and Baver, has gone on physical examinations with the purpose of joining the Free Dutch fighters. Mr. Van Der Loo was born in Woodstock and has resided here for a number of years. It is reported that his parents now live in Holland.

Mrs. Birge Harrison and Mrs. Emma Goodrich, the latter for years past librarian of the Kingston Public Library, attended the concert given on Sunday last at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Cohn.

Joseph Freidberg made a flying trip to his home recently. He returned to New York where he and Mrs. Freidberg will spend the remainder of the winter.

After the present Red Cross war drive has terminated, it is proposed to keep the thermometer which has been erected, for future use. The framework will be carefully taken down and put away. When it was necessary to erect a similar thermometer some years ago for winter sports activities for some reason it was kept, and the present one had to be built especially for the purpose it is now being used.

Mrs. Percy Hill injured her foot recently.

GOATS HALT SERMON

Investigation of a clamor disrupting services at Boshoff, South Africa, revealed two billy goats clambering up the gallery stairs. The minister was able to continue with his sermon only after the sexton had mustered sufficient forces to oust the intruders.

A new act controls rents in Washington, D. C., at the level of January 1, 1941, and will remain in operation until Dec. 31, 1945.

LET'S GO! LET'S GO! LET'S GO!

Or if you want something more elaborate, try the Florida Orange "Flower Cake." It's not only a budget special, but it's so pretty and delicious, there won't be any leftovers.

Florida Orange "Flower Cake"

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup orange juice

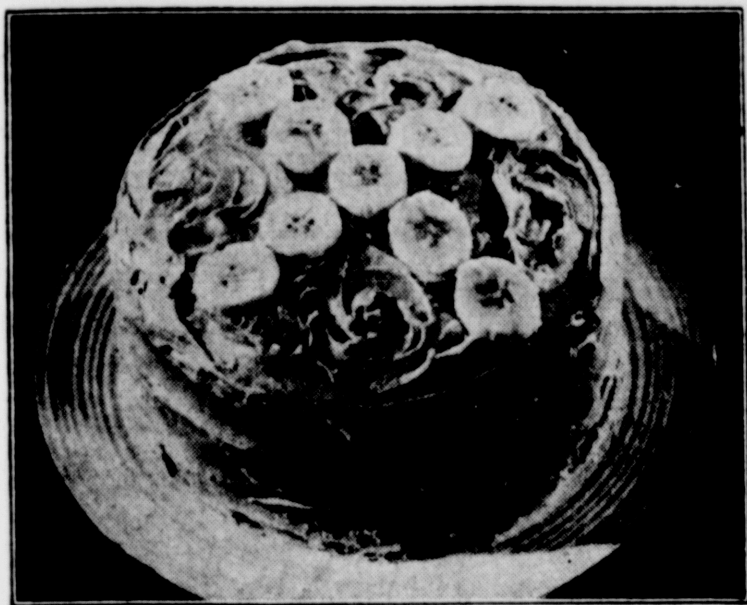

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add orange rind to shortening and cream thoroughly. Add sugar gradually and cream until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add sifted dry ingredients and orange juice alternately in small amounts, beating thoroughly after each addition. Pour into greased pans and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 30 minutes. Makes 2 (8-inch) layers. Place orange segments over 1 layer of cake and cover with sweetened whipped cream. Place second layer of cake on first and spread with whipped cream. Then arrange orange segments in flower design on whipped cream for garnish. Substitute grapefruit or peach slices for variation.

There are one-egg cakes, honey cakes, layer cakes, sweet potato cakes all included in this special Budget section. And these are but a few of the wonderful variety of Chocolate Cakes, Spongecakes, Angel Food Cakes, Party Cakes, Fruit Cakes, Spicecakes, and cakes in general in the complete booklet.

The first two booklets in the series have already been released and are still available.

TOMMY MANVILLE MARRIES FIFTH TIME

Tommy Manville places a ring on the finger of Actress Bonita Edwards as he is married in Ridgefield, Conn., for the fifth time. Left to right Dr. W. H. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Manville, Miss Fritzie Apter and Judge John J. O'Brien, who performed the ceremony.

Tommy Manville Weds Showgirl In Connecticut

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Seat D113 at the Broadhurst Theatre last night held one very blonde, very white-ermined and very happy young woman—Mrs. Tommy Manville 5th.

She laughed at Sophie Tucker's jokes in "High Kickers" and enjoyed even more the antics of the chorus line.

For she had just stepped out of that same chorus line and changed her name from plain Bonita Edwards, showgirl, to Mrs. Thomas Franklin Manville, Jr., which is something else again.

Yesterday was the day, the scene Ridgefield, Conn., in the office of Probate Judge Joseph H. Donnelly, with Justice J. J. O'Brien doing the honors.

Tommy, 47 (so he says), and Bonita, 22, motored there just one week after they met via telephone, obtained a license, prevailed upon Judge Donnelly to waive Connecticut's five-day waiting and blood test ruling, and there you are. It all started when Manville—who as a squire to showgirls is (oops, was!) unsurpassed—phoned his friend Jack Eigen and asked for an introduction to "the most glamorous girl in town."

Jack, being a radio show producer, knows plenty of girls, and for a gag he said, "I've got just the one, Tommy. Her last name's Edwards, same as your last wife's."

But Manville said, fine, she'd do, and apparently she did, for she has now succeeded (1) Florence Huber, (2) Lois McCain, (3) Avonne Taylor, and (4) Marcelle Edwards as Mrs. Manville.

Bustling around town last night, Manville and his bride stopped a moment to say they'll spend their honeymoon in Miami so that Tommy may meet his new in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. William Rufus Edwards of Chicago.

"It's the real thing this time," said Manville, blithely forgetting that he recently denied he planned to marry again with the statement—"No, of course not—four times is enough, isn't it?"

The five states that reported the lowest birth rates in 1940 were New Jersey, 14.1; New York, 14.6; Connecticut, 14.7; Rhode Island, 15.1; and Missouri, 15.5, the Census reports.

filled kitchen. Screaming for help, Robert was found vainly trying to lift his unconscious sister from her high chair yesterday when a neighbor arrived and shut off the accidentally-opened gas jets. Robert is three years old; Carol, one.

To Speak on Africa

Dressed in the costume of the Fulah tribe, Miss Frances Allison, a student here in New Paltz Normal School, will lecture at Tuesday's Assembly on the topic, "From Dakar to Timbuktu."

"It is so very difficult for people here in civilized America to understand the semi-primitive people of Africa," states Miss Allison, who has known and worked with these people for a number of years. She was born in the Belgian Congo, of missionary parents, but came to the United States at the age of three years to begin her schooling. At that time there were no schools for white children in Africa, a fact which forced missionary parents to abandon their work in order to send their children to school. Today, fortunately, that system has been changed, and there now are several schools which enroll the children of the mission. Frances Allison, herself, teaches in such a school, but at present is on her furlough, which was unpredictably extended because of the war. These schools work under a five year plan which consists of four years of active teaching service and one year of furlough, or vacation.

Cancer and Control

"Cancer and Its Control," was the topic discussed by Dr. John Swan, executive secretary of the New York State Council of the American Society for the Control of Cancer in assembly Tuesday.

Dr. Swan is the executive secretary of the New York State Council of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. He pointed out the fact that, although the death rate due to cancer has been increasing since the beginning of the century, there has been a slight decrease in the last two years. He added that this is the first time there has been such a decrease in upper New York.

"To the average person cancer means a long illness and a funeral. It is true that it causes the second largest number of deaths in this state every year. However, it is preventable and curable," said the speaker. Dr. Swan pointed out that the best prevention is to follow the simple rules of health, which are so often neglected. He added that cancer can be cured if it is put under medical care when the first symptoms are noticed. Chronic sores about the body openings, tumors and digestive disturbances may be symptoms of cancer.

However, Dr. Swan stated that investigations have proven that only 20 per cent of the people who are examined for cancer usually have it.

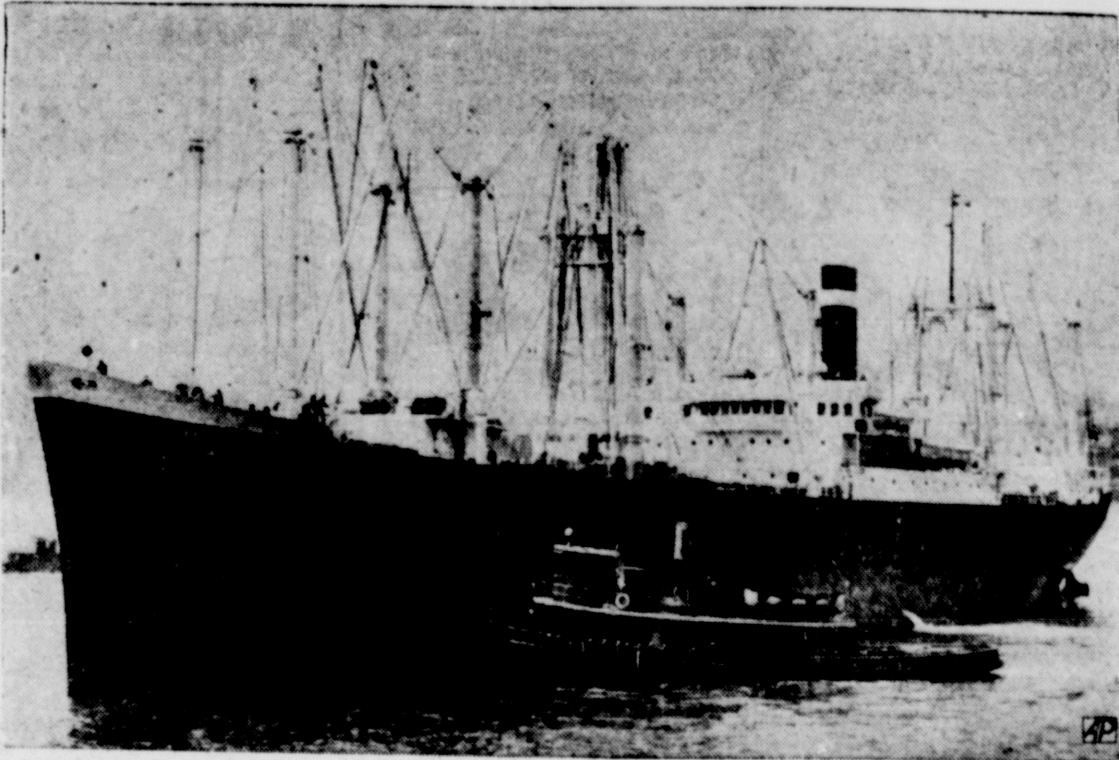

Cancer, to be cured, must be found before it has begun to spread and must be completely destroyed. Dr. Swan stated that, as future teachers, we should know the symptoms of cancer and know that immediate treatment is necessary to cure it.

Pupils See Opera

On Friday approximately 75 pupils from the training school and high school attended the opera, "The Bartered Bride."

Each year the Metropolitan Opera Guild sponsors a series of afternoon productions for children from 12 to 18 years of age. They use the regular cast and the performance is in no way changed. The Guild also lowers the price so that it comes to approximately one half the usual admission rate.

The only stipulation is that each community raise a dollar for each child that goes. The students here have been busy raising the money throughout the term sponsoring food sales, concerts, and by various other means.

It is the first time that a group has been organized from New Paltz. The reason it has not been attempted in the past is of the difficulties in arrangements of this sort.

The children themselves decided they wanted to see an opera and set about to raise the needed sum.

THE PHONE BOOTH MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

YESTERDAY: Asey Mayo, the Cape Cod detective who sometimes calls himself the "Hayseed Sleuth," has started with his sister Jennie to deliver some clams. But first the windshield wiper breaks, and then, at a crossroads, they run smack into the Army on maneuvers. Another woman, whom neither Asey nor Jennie knows, is also caught by the long line of trucks.

Chapter Two Deserted Inn

"LADY, orders in order," said the soldier.

The woman lit her lip.

"But I simply must get on! I've got to! Consider, they," the woman pointed toward the Army, "they are headed toward Boston and are using one side of the road. I am headed for Provincetown and I'm on the other side of the road. I shall drive with great care on the extreme right of the road, my car is not large, and I shall not get in the Army's way! I—"

"Orders, lady." The soldier's patience was wearing very thin.

"Oh, it's no use talking with him!" Jennie said. "Red tape, red tape! Minute you run into the Army, you run into silly old red tape! Asey, give me the newspaper out of your pocket to put over my hat, will you? My hat's—"

"Please," the woman held out her umbrella. "Wo! 't you share this? And as for you, young man, you'd best look out for that dog. If he's not caught before he jumps out in front of those trucks, your theoretical problem may have an actual incident!"

Asey and the soldier rushed to grab the playful black-and-white setter pup which, having just discovered the Army, gave no indication of ever wanting to give up its new-found pleasure of bounding at every canvas-covered truck that passed. Three times he allowed his prospective captors to lay their hands on him, and each time, with a joyous yelp, he wriggled his wet body out of their grasp and bounded away after more trucks.

Five minutes later, Asey, breathless and soaked to the skin, placed the dog bodily in the arms of two soldiers and returned to where he had left Jennie by the traffic light.

She and the woman with the umbrella were shaking hands like old friends about to part for many years, and as Asey watched the pair curiously, Jennie turned, calmly removed her hat from her head, and tossed it into the path of the still passing column.

Then, before Asey could stop her, and with a sublime disregard for her own safety, Jennie dove after the hat.

The exact sequence of the ensuing events was something Asey never quite sorted out in his mind. There was a multiple shrieking of brakes, a great deal of whistle blowing and order shouting, and then the third truck from Jennie's hat suddenly skidded on the glassy asphalt and headed, with a certain drunken dignity, for an adjacent telephone pole.

Although the impact seemed slight enough, the pole broke neatly in two. There was a flash of blue sparks, and at once the street lights and the traffic lights went out, and the gas station and stores and houses on the opposite corner were plunged into inky darkness.

But, over and above the subsequent din, Jennie's voice still managed to ring out shrill and clear.

"Cross over quick, Asey! I'm on the corner! Cross over quick! Hurry! Cross over!"

Opportunist

Asey found himself feeling a little guilty, as he ran for Syl's truck, but he consoled himself with the thought that there were literally no red lights barring his way across the intersection. Those trucks which had passed before Jennie put on her hat-retrieving act had already rumbled out of sight, and the remainder of the column had halted while the soldiers with the red lanterns busied themselves with the ditched truck.

As he struggled with Syl's starter, Asey suddenly realized that the small sedan of Jennie's new-found friend had sneaked past in front of him and was now speeding along the road toward Provincetown.

Asey grinned. She was an opportunist, that woman was, and he hoped that Jennie's spur of the moment act wouldn't get her into any trouble with the Army as she passed the column. Jennie should have known better. Jennie, he told himself as he guided the truck past the blacked-out traffic lights, was going to get a talking.

"Here I am!" Jennie jumped on the running board and plopped herself down on the seat beside him with a satisfied sigh. "Now! Up the street and take the first left turn, and it's just a little way down from there. Hustle!"

"Jennie," Asey said gravely, "I don't know what's going to happen to you, but I think you're liable to court-martial! I saw you. You deliberately threw that hat!"

"An' it wasn't hurt a bit," Jennie said cheerfully. "Didn't even bend the feather. Hurry, Asey! Did she get away?"

"Why bother to hurry now? It's been a lot more than eight minutes since we stopped. Nearer twenty, I'd say."

"Yes, yes, yes, but there's the extra fifteen minutes!"

"The what?" Asey demanded.

"The extra fifteen minutes! You know I always keep my watch fifteen minutes fast," Jennie said. "So I don't miss radio programs. I think it pays to keep watches fast. We got three minutes. Did she get away?"

"Your girl friend with the umbrella? Uh-huh. She sneaked across Jennie, you want to think twice before you do things like that! But—tossin'! I wasn't just dangerous for you—"

"Oh, it wasn't either! I only pretended I was going to jump after that hat! An' no one saw me, Asey, an' even if they did, they'd still have an awful hard time provin' it didn't blow off. An' anyway, I knew you'd stick up for me if anyone made any fuss. Hurry up!"

"But s'pose someone did see you!" Asey persisted. "I know this business of the Army rushin' around seems like a lot of play actin', but they mean it! S'pose some unity officer decided to make an example of you. What do you think would've happened?"

"Well," Jennie said complacently, "I s'pose he'd just have to arrest me as a Fifth Column, wouldn't he? Turn here."

Asey mentally decided that his talking to her was not making much progress.

"Now look," he said. "Consider. If some officer—"

Nobody Home

"DON'T miss the driveway," Jennie interrupted. "It's somewhere ahead on the left, an' if the lights was only on, you could see that cunning little whale-shaped light they got. I wish I'd thought to ask her name, Asey."

"The whale's?"

"Course not! The woman's! I liked her. Schoolteacher, I think she was. Had steel-rimmed glasses on, an' she talked kind of precise. I didn't get a real good look at her, but her hat was that smooth, expensive kind of felt, even if it was kind of plain an' unbecomin'. Her gloves an' her bag was nice, too, an' that tweed coat couldn't have cost a penny less than fifty dollars unless she got it at a sale. With different glasses an' her hair done sort of up instead of all down at the nape of her neck, she'd look lots smarter. How old do you think she was?"

"Don't you try to get me off the track by talkin' about her!" Asey admonished. "You done a crazy thing, Jennie, an' you know it. An' even if that woman in the sedan didn't have a thing to do with it, they'd have got her in Dutch along with you if they'd picked you up, an' all account of this fool spur of the moment impulse of yours. Don't you dare ever do anything like it again!"

"All right, all right, I won't! But we did get across, didn't we? Turn now, Asey. Here, I s'pose, Jennie added, "we ought to go around to the back door, but I don't know just where it is, an' with the rain an' no lights to guide you, maybe you better just stop by that covered port ahead. There!"

Asey obediently drew the truck up beneath a porte-cochere.

"Now what?" he inquired.

"Why, get them clams out, ninnny! What do you think?"

"Wa-el," Asey drawled, "considerin' what we been through to get here, it seems to me we ought to blow a trumpet or have a fanfare. Don't you think I should give 'em a blast of Syl's exhaust whistle?"

"Asey, don't you dare toot that awful thing!" Jennie said in a scandalized voice. "You get the clams out an' put 'em on the steps. I'll go inside an' find Mrs. Doane an' tell her we're right on time. Don't look nice in there, with all the candles!"

It did look nice, Asey thought, as he hauled out the first of eight buckets of clams from the rear of the truck.

After hailstorms and wet dogs and pouring rain, the Whale Inn's glowing candles and chintz-covered chairs and lighted fires that he could see through the wide French doors were all a pleasant and welcome sight.

He had the last bucket lined up on the steps when Jennie bustled out.

"Asey, there isn't anyone in there! Not a soul!"

"Sure there is," Asey said. "Must be Look around for a bell or something. An' Jennie, I just got an idea. I'm goin' to take you to dinner here. I just remembered I'm starvin' hungry. Bill Porter was in such a hurry to get home, he omitted lunch. I was waa—"

"Asey, forget your old stomach an' come in here! I tell you, there isn't a soul around, an' no bells! You come see!"

Asey followed her up the steps and through the French doors into the large, comfortable room, and looked around appreciatively.

"Why, I remember this place, Jennie! Used to be Mrs. Mercer's Boardin' House. I used to take the boarders on fishin' trips, years ago."

NO TIME FOR LOVE

By WATKINS E. WRIGHT

Chapter 16
Bridge, For Two

"YOU seem as far away as that England you spoke of," Lavinia said presently. "You are over there in your thoughts, aren't you?"

"No," said Rod. "I was thinking of something else entirely."

"It must have been something terribly engrossing—from your long silence, and intense expression."

"It was," said Rod. "Maybe I'll tell you about it sometime."

"That," said Lavinia, "gives me something to look forward to." Then she felt a sense of annoyance because of Rod's evasiveness. "You know where to find me if you're ever in a confessional mood."

"Thanks," said Rod. He gave her a swift smile, and then looked up at the sky. "I'm afraid that little black patch up there means rain. Maybe we'd better be getting back to the mainland."

"Just as you say," Lavinia replied—feeling disappointed, cheated. "Shall we start for the boat now?"

"Yes, I think we should," Rod got up, pulled Lavinia to her feet. They strode off toward the cove where the supper things were waiting to be packed. "I found the book on bridge," Rod told her, as they began gathering up the knives, forks, spoons, and other articles which had to be carried to the boat. "We'll try out some of the rules and conventions as soon as we get to the cottage."

"That will be nice," Lavinia said somewhat stiffly. Somehow or other she had lost interest in playing bridge with Rod. Something had happened to her, or to both of them. He seemed remote now—not close and friendly and sweet. "Oughtn't we to wash these things first?"

"No," we'll dump them in the dishpan," said Rod, "and I'll clean up in the morning."

"I'd be glad to wash them, and let you dry them."

"You're sweet, Lavinia. But I never let my guests help with the work."

"An old English custom, I suppose," Lavinia couldn't keep a touch of sarcasm from creeping into her voice. "Or am I wrong?"

"It's just a way I have," said Rod. "It's neither English nor American—or maybe it's a bit of both."

Everything was packed now, and they made their way to the boat. The water was a little rougher now, as a wind had arisen. The small patch of black cloud was spreading.

"We got under way just in time," Rod said, as the boat sped away from the island.

And he was right. They had to run for the cottage. Large drops of rain began pelting them as they reached the porch. Rod unlocked the door and flung it open.

"Enter!" he said. "And welcome!"

"Thanks," said Lavinia. She stepped into a fair-sized room that immediately reminded her of pictures she had seen of the inside of yachts and launches. Everything about the place was nautical.

And although the outside of the cottage looked shabby and dilapidated, the inside was in perfect order. There was a fireplace with a ship model on the mantel. There were pictures of ships on the wall. An old anchor hung on one wall, and facing it was an ancient figure-head.

"The bridge cards are there on that table," Rod said. "You can get them ready for our game, if you don't mind, while I dump the dirty dishes in the lean-to-kitchen."

Lavinia watched him hurry out. And then she walked to the table. She found the cards and picked them up. She began shuffling them, still looking over the room.

"I feel," she said to herself, "like Dorothy Lamour in a Bing Crosby movie." And she tried to smile. But for some odd reason the smile wouldn't come.

Plot

FIFTY-TWO cards spread out upon the table. Spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs—and Lavinia thinking almost wholly of hearts. Thinking like that, and despising herself for it. Rod there close to her, explaining, helping, being patient and kind, and really showing her a lot of things about the game of bridge that she should know.

"Keep your mind on the game, Lavinia. Pretend!" she commanded herself. And for quite a while she did so. But every now and then she would remember how cozy it was in the cottage, with the fire burning on the hearth—a small one to take the chill out of the room. And remembering that, she would start wondering, thinking maybe that having a home, sharing it with a husband—a man like Rod—would be nice.

"There's just one drawback with this two-handed game," said Rod.

"What's that?" Lavinia asked.

"You gamble on the fourth hand," Rod said. "I mean, you're so eager to see what's in it, that you over-bid your own cards. Of course, playing it helps. But if you had a partner to give you information, you'd bid more carefully. As it is, having no partner to bowl you out, you run risks."

"I see what you mean," said Lavinia. "But I feel I've learned a lot just the same."

"You have learned a lot. All you needed was a few pointers."

"You think I could really sit down now, and play a fairly decent game with people who play well?"

"I certainly do."

Lavinia laughed. "I wish I had confidence enough to challenge that Mr. and Mrs. Masters to a game. I'd just love to lick the very dickens out of them."

"Then why don't you?"

"I would—if I had a partner like you."

Rod laid down his cards. He leaned toward Lavinia. His eyes were shining.

"Do you know," he said, "I'd like to see you lick them. I thoroughly dislike unpleasant people like the Masters couple, people who was sarcastic to the bridge table. He slid his hand along the table, until it touched Lavinia's. Would you let me come up some evening, and join you in the challenge to Mr. and Mrs. Masters?"

"I would do that," said Lavinia. Her own eyes were shining now. "I think it would be wonderful!"

"I'd come in for a minute," said Rod. "I've been telling you how you ought to play bridge, and you ought to play like that—and all the time I've refused to practice what I preached. Playing around with you for the past week, Lavinia, has made me feel I'd like just one evening of mingling with people. Especially, if you'll share the evening with me."

"Then you'll do it? You'll come up and be my partner?"

"Yes, Lavinia. Whenever you want me."

"Tomorrow night all right?"

"Suits me fine," said Rod. "I'll give me a chance to get my more civilized clothes out of storage, and have them pressed."

Date For Dinner

"I TELL you what to do," said Lavinia eagerly. "Come up to the Inn at seven and have dinner with me."

Rod hesitated a moment. "Are you sure you don't mind having a mystery man share your table in the Inn dining room?" he said.

"I was never more sure of anything in my life!"

"Very well, I'll come."

"I'll introduce you to Mr. and Mrs. Masters after dinner," Lavinia went on. "And we'll challenge them then." She was thoughtful for a moment. "Only, they may flatly refuse, remembering the other time I played with them."

"I'll fix that," said Rod. "I'll simply say that I've taken you on as a pupil—and we want an opportunity to try out the results of my instruction."

"Splendid! They can't very well refuse then, can they?"

"No! We'll have them cornered, so to speak," Rod picked up his cards. "Now," he said, "let's work out that one-club bid with the one-diamond response. Shall we?"

"Let's do it by all means," said Lavinia. "We'll try it out on our opponents tomorrow evening."

For the next hour they laid out cards, and played them. They discussed this convention and that. They even worked out some signals which they planned to use the next evening—signals that were perfectly legitimate, and yet which would serve them well, once they had them worked out satisfactorily.

It was eleven o'clock when Lavinia got up to go.

Rod suddenly switched on a small portable radio. He turned the dial until he got a dance orchestra.

"What's that for?" Lavinia inquired.

"I need a little dance practice," said Rod.

"You mean with me?"

"Naturally." "You don't know what you're letting yourself in for."

"I'll gamble on you, if you'll gamble on me. I'm pretty rusty, and need to be in trim for our evening together at the Inn."

"So do I," Lavinia went to his arms.

They danced for over half an hour. And then Lavinia noticed that the sound of rain upon the roof had stopped.

He switched off the radio. He joined Lavinia on the porch, and closed and locked the door.

"Have you really enjoyed our outing?" he asked.

"Indeed I have," said Lavinia.

"So have I," Rod said. "It's been one of the happiest days of my life."

"It's been the happiest day of my life," said Lavinia.

At the place where the lawn met the rocks, they hesitated.

Rod took her hand, looked deep into Lavinia's eyes. For a brief, exciting moment she was quite sure he was going to take her in his arms and kiss her. But the moment passed. Nothing happened.

"Good night, Lavinia," Rod said. There was a strange new tone to his voice, a sort of huskiness, as though he were experiencing some kind of emotional upheaval.

"Good night, Rod," said Lavinia, and ran across the lawn, and was gone.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The second session of the training course for the Emergency Service Corps was held Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock. The theme of the evening was first aid work. Clifford Donohue led the instruction in this work and two reels of pictures were used. One of arterial bleeding and how to control it and the second on the heart and how it works. These were secured through the courtesy of the State Health Department and were helpful in giving the scouts better idea of why they give first aid in case of bleeding. Ed Sylvester led one patrol in drill work. William Kinch led the group in knot tying and Cliff Donohue gave the instructions for the first aid work. Harry Rigby issued the training course application and gave a brief resume of the program for next week stating that the next meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening, January 23, at 7:15 o'clock.

The Ulster-Greene Council will be visited by Philip Mauro, deputy regional executive for Region No. 2, on Monday and Tuesday of next week. He will talk with the council officers and assist them in planning the work for 1942.

Wednesday evening the Kingston district will hold its first quarterly meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 7:45 o'clock. Dr. A. S. Cole, the new chairman of the district, will preside. Plans will be presented for 1942 and each troop should be represented at this meeting.

LONGEST MARRIAGE ENDS

The aid of school children as volunteer firemen in Dallas helped to cut the fire rate 50 per cent the first ten months of 1941, as compared with the same period in 1940.

War Silences London's Bells

Churches Suffer Heavily in Air Raids, but Most Carillons Escape.

LONDON.—Londoners, who have a historic affection for their church bells, are keeping careful count of the air-raid damage to the city churches and their carillons. The record can be read between the lines of the ancient nursery rhyme about London's churches:

"Oranges and lemons say the bells of St. Clement's."
The blitz finally caught up with the bells of St. Clement Dane, in the Strand. They were to have been buried in sand for the duration of the war to save their gay nursery rhyme peal for posterity. As they lay in the porch awaiting removal an incendiary bomb fired the church. Now only the walls remain. The bells lie in debris. Some may never peal again.

Claim of St. Martin's Bells.
"You owe me five farthings, say the bells of St. Martin."
Maybe they will go on collecting their debts for years yet, the bells of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, at Trafalgar square. A bomb hit the church and damaged the crypt early in the blitz, but the bells are still intact.

"When will you pay me? say the bells of Old Bailey."
The Church of St. Sepulchre, opposite the Old Bailey, scene of England's gravest criminal trials, once had a grim task. Its bell tolled a death knell for murderers condemned to the gallows. The central criminal court of the Old Bailey has been hit three times, but St. Sepulchre's bell has escaped so far.

"When I grow rich, say the bells of Shoreditch."
The Actors church, St. Leonard's, mother church of Shoreditch, still has its bells. It has another distinction in its official register, which records the death in 1388 of Thomas Carn, aged 207. The present church was built in 1740.

"When will that be? say the bells of Stepney."
Incendiaries burned holes in the roof of St. Dunstan's Stepney, known since the Fifteenth century as the parish church of all those born at sea. Bomb blasts broke the windows.

Great Bell of Bow.
"I do not know! says the great bell of Bow."

The most famous of all London church bells are those of St. Mary-le-Bow, which once sounded the city's nine o'clock curfew. For centuries the hallmark of a Londoner was that he be born within reach of their sound. The bells remain, but the church has been severely damaged.

None of London's bells has sounded since the day war was declared. Until peace comes again only one event could make them speak—the arrival of invading German troops on English soil.

But war cannot silence the nursery rhyme. Cockney children playing in the East End streets chant "Oranges and Lemons" as they choose partners for the tug-of-war which ends their ancient game. The words they sing, though, are their own blitz-amended version:

Gay go up and gay go down
To ring the bells of London town.
Here come incendiaries to light you to bed—
Out with the sandbags! Kili 'em all dead!

Community Negotiates

On Demolition Program

EVERETT, WASH.—A continuous program of demolition has rid this community of nearly 150 substandard and unsightly structures.

Fourfold object of the campaign is to decrease insurance rates, reduce hazards to life and property, improve the general appearance of the community and discourage further decentralization of business by restoring sites of old buildings to potential usefulness.

The program has been in operation since 1938. Instead of compulsory condemnation proceedings, personal interviews are conducted. All but three of 43 buildings eliminated in 1938 were razed as a result of personal negotiation.

Students Total 3,000 in

Western Kansas Town

HAYS, KAN.—Half of this western Kansas city went back to school recently.

Out of the total population of 6,400, 3,000 students and 200 teachers returned to the dozen educational institutions which make Hays western Kansas' cultural center.

Besides the hundreds of children enrolled in the public schools, hundreds more attend Fort Hayes State college, St. Joseph's college and military academy, Hays parochial school for girls, Catholic high school.

Invention Reduces Wear

On Mowing Machines

TULARE, CALIF.—Elimination of wear on moving parts of mowing machines has been achieved by Stephen Curtis of Tulare, who has designed a new type cam drive.

Curtis has replaced the standard connecting rod device with cams built to operate in a box of oil, thus doing away with virtually all vibration. The new cam drive also eliminates the noise in the mowing machines.

Yoakum county, Texas, is the fastest growing county in the country, changing from 1,263 persons in 1930 to 5,354 in 1940, an increase of 323.9 per cent, according to the Census.

Total state government debt rose from $270 million in 1902 to $3,505 million in 1940, according to the Census Bureau.

Proclamation on Nutrition Issued

Mayor Heiselman Declares
Great Food Vital to Individual's Part

Mayor C. J. Heiselman today proclaimed the period between Thanksgiving Day and December 3 as "Nutrition Fortnight," declaring that "the need for health, strength and efficiency of the entire population is of vital concern in the defense of American liberties."

Acting in cooperation with the Ulster County Nutrition Committee, the mayor's proclamation pointed out that while "the increasing knowledge acquired through scientific research in the field of nutrition is leading toward effective utilization of the foods which are plentiful in this state and nation," the need to spread such knowledge "is of permanent importance to both the national defense effort and the individual's part in that effort."

Following the mayor's proclamation, Mrs. William T. Hooke, chairman of the Ulster County Nutrition Committee, announced that the group is not only planning events during the fortnight, but is undertaking a long-range program, which will include the organization of groups within each town of the county in order to carry forward an aggressive campaign of education in the field of nutrition.

The Proclamation
WHEREAS, the need for health, strength and efficiency of the entire population is of vital concern in the defense of American liberties, and

WHEREAS, the increasing knowledge acquired through scientific research in the field of nutrition is leading toward more effective utilization of the foods which are plentiful in this state and nation, and

WHEREAS, the need to spread this knowledge to every individual is of paramount importance to both the national defense effort and the individual's part in that effort;

THEREFORE, I, Mayor Heiselman of the city of Kingston do hereby proclaim the period between November 20 and December 3 as

NUTRITION FORTNIGHT
AND FURTHERMORE do urge the people of the aforesaid city of Kingston to observe the period with proper public ceremonies and observances.

Given under my hand and Seal in the City of Kingston this 19th day of November, 1941.

CONRAD J. HEISELMAN, Mayor.

Play clothes wear better if they get a soap and water washing after three wears. Another wearability aid is to hang the wet playthings on a line to dry immediately after removing them unless you're planning to wash them right away.

PATTERN 9969

The smartest shirtwaister of the season is the easiest to make, says Marian Martin of her new Pattern, 9969! Especially suited to a striped fabric but lovely in plain material too, this frock features the new "cross-patch" pockets and square-cornered collar. The lowered shoulder seams create a pretty bias yoke effect at the front, and the gathers below them give fullness to the bodice. The two central skirt panels are bias—just the effect interesting? It is slimming on larger figures. A back cut in two sections, a straight belt, and either short, three-quarter or long sleeves complete this attractive design. A contrast collar and pockets are optional too.

Pattern 9969 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 40. Size 16 requires 4 yards 35 inch.

New Angles on Zigzags and Stripes

By LUCRECE HUDGINS

(A Feature Service Writer)

Washington—When you start shopping for your spring outfit, look before going to stripes, zigzags and circles.

As a rule vertical stripes make a gal look taller, while horizontal stripes make her look broader, but sometimes when the stripes are wide and evenly spaced, an optical illusion results.

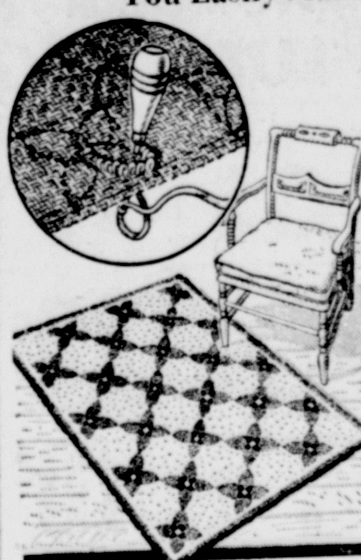

A stout effect may be given by a dress with an up-and-down design, while a tall slender appearance may be given by stripes that are horizontal.

If this isn't confusing enough, some prominent stripes fall in the same class as angular, geometric designs and make the figure seem more stiff and angular than it really is.

If you are too thin or too heavy, beware of such a design. For the best effect don't have all the stripes going in one direction. They are

Gay Hooked Rug You Easily Make

Saucer Is Used To Trace Design

A floral hooked rug is so charming in any room and so easy and inexpensive to make! Discarded clothing may be your material; as for colors you can run riot!

What's your favorite color combination? Green with rose? Blue with wine and pink?

Decide on your rug size (23 by 37 inches is a nice size) and get some burlap as a foundation, about 27 by 41 inches. Then, with a 6-inch saucer, trace the design shown in our sketch on the burlap, stitch carpet binding around it and tack to a wooden frame.

Easy! And now cut your material into 1/2-inch strips, ready for hooking. The hooking process is just this: hold a strip under the foundation, thrust your hook through the burlap and hook up the strip, leaving a loop on top 1/4-inch high.

Our 32-page booklet gives complete details of making this rug, its frame and foundation; has other lovely hooked rug designs and directions for making woven, braided, crocheted and many other novel and beautiful rugs.

Send ten cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for your copy of "How to Make Your Own Rugs" to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

much more striking if turned to give diagonal, vertical or horizontal lines in combination with the dominant note of the design.

Large patterned designs with circles and garlands of flowers, so favored for spring wear, often steal the show from a girl instead of enhancing her appearance. They also increase the apparent size of the wearer.

If you dote on dots, you're okay because such prints are very flattering to the out-of-proportion figure and look very trim and cool when worn with white accessories.

READER WOULD CHANGE RULES THAT REQUIRE MEN TO STAND BARE-HEADED AT CEREMONIES

A special delivery letter asks that in the interests of the emergency I print an answer immediately, for the benefit of hundreds of Americans who must have noticed in the newspapers the number of public men who have taken serious colds during outdoor ceremonies in which they have had to stand bare-headed.

"Not the least of these," the writer continues, "was President Roosevelt who was confined to the White House for several days after speaking without wearing a hat during an Armistice Day service. As never before, it seems vital for our executives to carry on their duties in good health. And it would seem that some salute could be sponsored that would safeguard the lives and health of these men by permitting them to wear their hats on such occasions, at least for the duration. What do you think of such an idea and would you be willing to champion it?"

In my opinion it would be impossible for any citizen to attempt to change the exactions of those ceremonial observances which alone require that the President should even an act of Congress could make it fitting for a man in civilian dress to wear his hat when laying a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier or when standing at attention at the raising or lowering or passing of the colors.

How to Make People Be More Definite

Dear Mrs. Post: When someone telephones and explains that she had intended to come to see me and at the last minute couldn't get away and will come one day next week but can't say definitely which day, how can I handle the situation properly? You see, I do all my housework and often I am not fit to receive unexpected guests and I can't sit around dressed anticipating her visit each day.

Answer: You can ask her, "Can't you set a definite time for after next week, so that I can surely be at home? Otherwise I might have to miss you." If after this she can't give you a definite time and she does come and find you "not at home" it may be disappointing, but it will not be your fault. On the other hand, it is likely that she will pay her visit late in the afternoon, by which time of the day it is hoped that you can't give your husband's homecoming and that this ought to be attractive enough for company. Or if she comes just as your are going out, then tell her frankly that this is just what you hoped to prevent, because now you have an appointment in so many minutes for your district. If you can't ask her in! If you're puzzled about any point of correct table setting, you'll want to read Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Table Setting." When Father Takes a Wife
Mrs. Johnson has lived in Extown for ten years. Her parents lived there years ago and had many friends. Her mother died a little over a year ago, and her father has just married again. His new wife is a stranger to Extown, but Mrs. Johnson has known her and been fond of her for years. Her question is how to word the invitations to a tea to be given for her father and his wife. She doesn't want to say, "To meet Mother and Father" and she doesn't want to be formal to the extent of having engraved invitations reading, "In honor of Mr. and Mrs. . . ."

In her place I would write across the top of my visiting cards "To meet Mrs. John Henry Smith," then in the lower corner, "Tuesday, November 19, tea at 5 o'clock." This is not a formal invitation. But if she can take the time to write longer notes, she might word these, "Dear Mary: Will you and John come in on Tuesday the 19th at 5 o'clock to have a cup of tea with Father and my new stepmother?" If she chooses to, she could add, "I am very happy about the marriage, because Mrs. Smith has long been a dear friend of ours." Or leave off this last explanation and say it instead when people are introduced to her.

The Bridegroom's Gloves

Dear Mrs. Post: I became wedding-minded a few months ago and have read everything you have written on the subject in your column in our papers; also the chapters in your book. But I have not found what I want to know about the bridegroom's gloves. When does he take them off? Surely he doesn't go through the wedding service all bundled up in his gloves? After having taken them off, assuming that he does, when does he put them on again? And when does he take them off again at the reception?

Answer: He wears gloves only if the wedding is very large and very formal. In this case he puts his left glove on his hand and places his right glove in his gloved left hand. He doesn't put on his right glove at all. At a very formal reception he may— but in the present day he rarely if ever does—wear gloves.

Salad Instead of Dessert
Dear Mrs. Post: It is permissible to serve a fruit salad instead of a sweet, last, at a small lunch party?

Answer: Yes it is very often done. It need not be a fruit salad. It can perfectly well be any other variety of salad—either with or without cheese. Half cups of black coffee should follow—very mealy!

The meeting concluded with a songfest and progressive games.

Next week the Business Girls will have a card party for the benefit of the service fund at 8 p. m. Wednesday. There will be no supper for next week's meeting.

How you care for your hair will count as much as how you wear your hair this fall, says Stani Mars, who designed this easy-to-keep coiffure. Things like liquid, soapless shampoo containing hair conditioner, plenty of rinsing, much brushing will be important whether you choose a two-to-four inch cut or a longer bob trimmed with false braids or chignon. The hair-do shown here includes a center part, long pompadour roll on each side of the neck, straight hair at the crown and low vertical rolls. There are three popular hair-dos now: the short cut (called everything from angel curls to drummer-boy-cut); short in back, long in front called "Poppinjay," and a cut long enough to take false pieces.

Testing Pillows

Now for those pillows! To begin with, are they really clean? Quite possibly after summer's heat, perspiration, use of cosmetics and insect repellent salves, etc.—the casings are really soiled. But what of the inner fillings—the feathers which make up the average pillow? Here's where you may like to try the "droop test" on bed pillows: If you're in doubt about their age, and if it droops badly, and sags, or seems like a sack of metal in the bottom of the case, then—out with it—that pillow is "dated!"

Synthetic Fuel When Gas Supply Gives Out

Scientists can tap huge stores of synthetic fuel to keep the nation's motors running should the United States ever experience a gasoline shortage such as Europe faces today.

Figuratively speaking, science can load the fuel tanks with coal, wood, sewage, molasses and numerous other substitutes.

There is little likelihood of American motorists being forced to use costlier synthetic fuel until this country's huge reserve of petroleum above and below ground are near exhaustion.

But should the time ever come when motorists, farmers and commercial truckers and their gasoline supplies shut off, there are many unexploited sources of synthetic fuel in this country which might be developed.

Among the substitutes which American motorists might use in event of a drastic gasoline shortage are liquefied coal, charcoal and wood; alcohol made from molasses and other farm products; ethane, butane and propane gases obtained from natural gas; methane gas from sewage and coal mines—and even water itself.

A good many people have had the idea of burning water—extracting the hydrogen by separating the H₂ from the O. It has been tried in this country, South America, Europe and perhaps elsewhere in an experimental way, but it is too expensive to be used in anything except a few experimental cars.

Petroleum experts estimate that approximately one-quarter of Europe's motor fuel supply is synthetic and that at least 40 per cent of Germany's annual supply of fuel is produced synthetically.

U. S. Detectors

American airplane detectors, such as are now being used in spotting aircraft over London, have made their appearance along the Eastern front, according to an article in the London Times. The new plane detectors enable the observers to plot the course of enemy bombers and locate them accurately about 50 miles from their target.

The detectors, similar to Britain's new radiolocator, help the Russians locate Nazi raiders despite fog or darkness. Since raiders can be spotted so far away from the site of the detector, Russian interceptor planes have ample time to go into action. This American device is said to be largely responsible for restricting the number of Nazi planes which have so far succeeded in reaching Moscow.

Rewarded for Mistake

They make mistakes in Uncle Sam's forces and because of one, George M. Mead of Fremont, Ohio, is enjoying an unexpected five-day furlough at his home here.

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—The stock market's direction finder functioned poorly again today and prices continued the narrow and uneven shifts of recent sessions.

A few specialized rallies accounted for gains of fractions to around a point or so, but the major part of the list showed a notable lack of rising power near the final hour. Dealings were at the rate of approximately 700,000 shares.

Concern over spreading sympathy strikes in the soft coal field as a result of the captive mines tieup accounted for a fair part of the light selling, brokers reported, and the desire to trim commitments was accentuated by the Thanksgiving holiday.

Bonds were mixed. Commodities were higher.

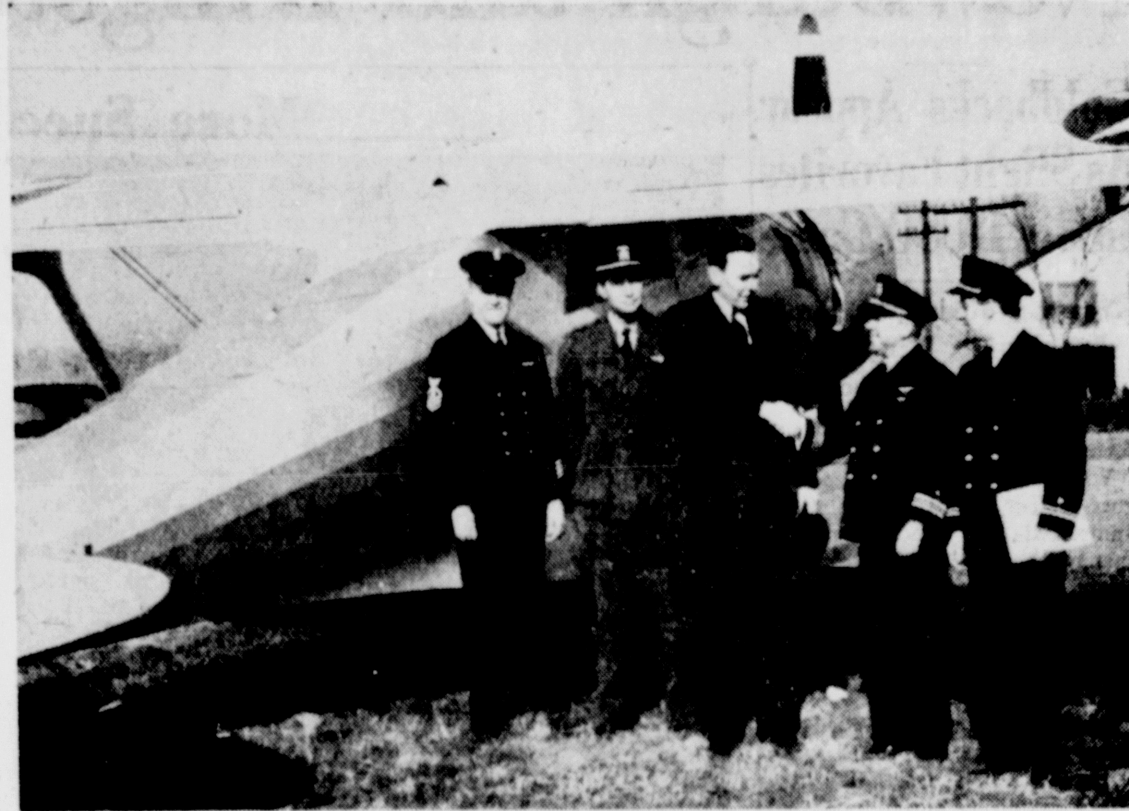

Stocks lacking buoyancy most of the time included Westinghouse, Air reduction, Chrysler, Philip Morris, U. S. Rubber and International Harvester. Inclined to improvement occasionally were American Can, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Chesapeake & Ohio, Caterpillar and Union Carbide.

'Rebels' Favor New Coast State

Counties Rich in Minerals Would Have Their Own Statehood

Yreka, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP)—A move is underway along the California-Oregon border to create a 49th state from six "unloved" counties rich in minerals and other resources.

The uprising began years ago when California's Siskiyou county, talked vigorously of joining Oregon. Then, a couple of months ago, Curry county in Oregon sought to secede and join California.

It grew into a demand for the creation of a new state yesterday when Gilbert Gable, mayor of Port Orford and head of the Curry county secessionists, convinced Siskiyou and Del Norte Californians that their counties were being mistreated, that their state was paying no attention to them.

The Siskiyou county Board of Supervisors, stirred by Gable's speech, set aside $100 to finance an investigation of new statehood possibilities, and find a name for the proposed new commonwealth, Del Norte county supervisors took similar action.

The "rebels" then sought to line up Modoc county in California, and Jackson and Josephine counties in Oregon.

Creation of a new state is not an easy job. It would have to be approved by the legislatures of Oregon and California, the voters of the two states, the counties and their voters, Congress and the President.

Can Cure Own Ills

Every man can be his own medicine chest, in the opinion of Dr. Charles H. Wood, who addressed the National Chiropractic convention at the Los Angeles college of chiropractic recently. "The secretions of many diseases," he explained, "have within them the essentials to bring about cures. Animals, by licking their wounds, reintroduce into their bodies the germs which set up 'antibodies' as immunizing agents. In somewhat similar fashion man can make use of the secretions of many external afflictions and some internal disorders by mixing them with distilled water and painting them on a briskly rubbed spot on the back to act as something akin to vaccination."

Simple Exercises Correct Big Hips

No Need To Remain Unattractive

It's so embarrassing, when you must bend over, to know your big hips look even bigger—but what can you do?

Lots! The right exercises reduce other women's hips (making matrons look like debutantes) and there's no reason why exercises shouldn't reduce yours.

The exercise shown in our sketch is part of a simple hip-reducing routine that fits easily into your daily schedule. It forces you to move the seldom-used muscles on the outside of your thigh and around the joint where your thigh bone fits into your pelvis bone.

1—Sitting, place hands on mat behind hips. 2—Pull first one knee, then the other, back to abdomen; then let legs fall forward onto mat.

Exercises work youth-making miracles on other parts of your body, too—bust, waistline, chin, arms, shoulders.

Rev. O. Schreiber Installed Pastor Of Local Church

Sunday evening the Rev. Otto L. Schreiber, Ph.D., was installed pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church on Hasbrouck avenue by the Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Trexler, president of the Lutheran Synod of New York. Following the installation ceremonies in the church a reception was given the pastor and his family in the church assembly rooms.

The Rev. Dr. Schreiber, who came from a professorship at Hartwick College, Oneonta, to become pastor of the local church, succeeds the Rev. Paul M. Young, now pastor for the Lutheran Service Center at Anniston, Ala.

At the services last evening the charge to the congregation was delivered by the Rev. Doerre Fritts, of Troy. Among the Lutheran pastors attending the services were the Rev. Frank Lawrence Gollnick of Trinity Church of Spring street; the Rev. Russell S. Gaenzle of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Wurts street; the Rev. A. Walter Baker of Weststock; and the Rev. Ole Cook of Ulster Park.

The Rev. Dr. Trexler in his address said that the installation of a pastor was one of the most joyful experiences in any church and likened the service to that of marriage with the pastor and congregation working together for the glory of God and His church.

Dr. Trexler said that if the thousands of church members were really working Christians the entire world would know about Christianity and would be filled with Christians.

More church members should attend services in the church said Dr. Trexler. He also called attention to the fact that people gave less to the church, proportionately, than to any other cause. Gifts to the church, he said, are of value in relation to what was held back. He said that church members should so conduct themselves as Christians and in these trying war-torn days it is the duty of the Christian to be calm, and they should not forget that God is still in control.

The Rev. Mr. Fritts in his charge to the pastor said that the contest between good and evil which has existed throughout the ages is more favorable today for Christians than ever before as people were more prepared to receive the Gospel and the teachings of Christ. God, he said, would continue to provide for His people today as He has in ages past. Both pastors and churches, he said, were in a much more favorable position today for service than ever before.

Babes on Broadway

Hollywood's finest juvenile talent, headed by Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, arrived at the Broadway Theatre via the screen yesterday in "Babes on Broadway." Mickey uncovers a new bag of tricks and Judy keeps pace with him with her songs and impersonations. Virginia Weidler, Ray McDonald, Richard Quine, Annie Rooney and about 200 other youngsters contrive to make this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer musical one of the best to come out of Hollywood in some time. "Babes on Broadway" is a story of the scores of kids who invade New York annually seeking their "break" on the stage. Mickey and his partner, McDonald and Quine, disgusted at not being able to land in a show, decide to produce their own. There are 12 musical numbers in addition to new impersonations by Mickey and Judy. Especially entertaining is Mickey's take-off of Carmen Miranda, which Judy introduces with the song, "Bombshell from Brazil."

Finley Sets High Record of Perfect S. S. Attendance

Alfred R. Finley of German street in December, 1941, rounded out 32 years of perfect attendance at the sessions of the Rondout Presbyterian Sunday School, and a tribute was paid that record at the annual Recognition Day service held in the Sunday school on Sunday morning.

Mr. Finley, who is now serving as secretary of the Sunday school, began his long record of perfect attendance in 1910, while he was a member of the primary class of the school, and since that year he has never missed being present at a session of the school.

This record of perfect attendance has never been excelled in the more than one hundred years that the school has been established, and it is not believed that the record has been equalled or surpassed by a member of any Sunday school in Kingston or Ulster county.

Since the years before the first World War in 1918, Fred L. Van Deusen, now assistant superintendent of the Sunday school has been making a custom of presenting those who had perfect attendance each year with a book, and while he was serving as superintendent of the school the annual Recognition Day service was established.

At the service held Sunday morning Mr. Finley, as usual, was presented with a book for perfect attendance during 1941.

Two other members of the school who also had a 100 per cent record of attendance last year, Miss Grace Terwilliger and Beatrice Joy, were also presented with books.

Those who had missed but one Sunday were George Wolff, the Rev. D. Linton Doherty, and Donald Wolff; those missing two Sundays were Superintendent J. W. Scott and Lois Wolff; missing three Sundays was Fred L. Van Deusen, while Henry Peyer missed four Sundays.

Tuesday evening the monthly meeting of the officers, teachers and older scholars will be held at the home of the Misses McCullough on Orchard street, at 8 o'clock.

Churchill Arrives Home to See 'Dead Horse's' Flogging

while the Japanese threat was only potential until the surprise attack. Is it strange then that Britain chose not to weaken her all too small resources in Europe in order to provide against a Japanese assault which might never materialize?

True, Britain (and the United States) obviously should have been prepared in the Far East. But all that should have been taken care of before Hitler started the war he had been freely advertising for years, thus giving the Japs their chance.

This seems to suggest that it's time we let the dead bury the dead, and start living in the all-important present and the future. The burning question of the moment isn't whether the allies should have been prepared but whether they now are going to split their forces and try to wage full-dress war in Europe and the Far East at the same time.

That's what the critics are urging, but the British and American governments have decided that the only sure road to victory is to smother the maw of the world War first—and that's Hitler. That doesn't mean reinforcements can't be sent to the Far East, but it may mean that not enough can be spared from Europe to prevent the Japs from overrunning a lot more territory before Germany is beaten and we can take care of Nippon.

Britain's greatest weakness at Singapore is warplanes. Those great soldiers, the Australians, are being asked to fight again without proper air protection, just as they did in Greece and in the hell at Crete.

Fuel for Critics

That naturally will add fuel to the fire of criticism, and raises another issue. It recalls the blunt reproof by J. A. Beasley, Labor party member of Australia's advisory war cabinet at the time of the battles of Greece and Crete. He demanded that the Aussies shouldn't be used again without adequate air support, and charged that "there is no fighting spirit in Great Britain." I am reminded, too, that I have a letter from Texas asking if there is any truth in the allegation "that the English always want someone to do their fighting."

Ordinarily I don't see much profit in discussing such controversial topics, but this is one of the times when we might speak up if we have anything to say for our ally. Of course, the answer must be a matter of personal opinion and I can only report observations made during a score of years that I associated with the British in many parts of the world, in peace and in war, at work and at play.

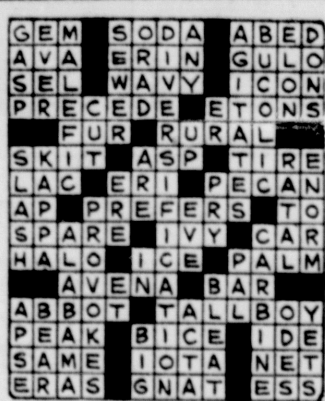

If I am sure of anything it is that dominion troops aren't sent in action merely because the English don't want to fight. And if dominion troops have lacked equipment, so has Tommy Atkins of the British Isles—as gallant a soldier as ever went over the top.

Proof? No, I can't prove it, because it could be argued that the great number of acts of heroism I've encountered were deeds of individuals, or small groups of individuals, and weren't representative of Britons as a whole. So I'm just parading the whole population of the British Isles, old and young, who stood up under the awful rain of death that Hitler poured on them from the skies and never even bowed their heads. They didn't ask anybody to take that for them. That's my case for our allies of the British Isles.

Officers Named

Robert G. Van Deusen was elected president of the Young People's Society of the First Presbyterian Church at the annual meeting held at the church on Sunday evening. The other officers elected were: Vice president, Miss Marjorie Hill; secretary, Miss Beatrice DiFlore; treasurer, Miss Inez McClements, and corresponding secretary, Charles Miller. The new officers will serve during the ensuing year.

Newburgh and Kingston Gridders Await Turkey Day Whistle

Goldbacks Appear As Slight Favorites In Big DUSO Game

Kingston Ready to Battle for Upset Win; 5,000 Fans Are Expected; Big Parade Tonight

With only one defeat on its near-perfect record, that being administered by Middletown, the snappy Newburgh Goldbacks will storm into municipal stadium Thursday afternoon for their much talked-about battle with Kingston High School. Game time is 2 o'clock.

At 7 o'clock tonight the pre-game festivities will start when a parade starts from the high school and goes on up to municipal stadium. Speeches, a bonfire and other appropriate ceremonies will mark the program at the stadium starting at about 8 o'clock.

According to advanced reports at least 5,000 and possibly 6,000 will attend tomorrow's game at the uptown ball park. Newburgh will bring a number of fans here as the outcome may be very enjoyable to their way of thinking. Odds in this game appear to favor Newburgh slightly. However, Kingston, despite its poor season to date, can't be counted out yet. Kingston has had a lot of time prepping for this battle and the fans may rest assured that the Maroon representatives will be anything but lifeless when the starting gun goes off tomorrow.

Tie May Result

Meanwhile, the possibility of a three-way tie in the final DUSO grid standings may be the result of the Middletown-Port Jervis encounter. Sport experts are quoting the Middies 8 to 5 favorites providing Tony Gobes plays. If the ace ball carrier stays on the sidelines they're giving Port an even chance. A victory for Port and a win by Newburgh would bring about that triple tie.

While Newburgh appears ready for the hectic battle in apparently fine physical shape, Kingston is worrying about its new back, Al Flick, who is suffering from a wrenched arm and may not see action at all in this big game of the year. A number of other Maroon players have slight bruises but aside from these, the squad is in pretty good shape.

Coach Bill Elder hasn't been letting his Goldbacks drift around taking life easy in preparation for the Turkey Day clash. He had his gridders out on the field four of the five school days last week and now is giving them instruction every day this week. A light drill is planned for this afternoon. Elder will bring his gridders here Thursday, leaving Newburgh a little before noon.

Petrillo, Santorine Tops

The Hilly City boys are plenty tough, all teams will agree. There's Ralph Petrillo, young sensational back who tallied four touchdowns for the Goldbacks against Peekskill. Petrillo also rolled up the only touchdown against Port Jervis when Newburgh won 7 to 0.

Petrillo isn't forced to do all of the work as he can count on "Sonny" Santorine, another flashy back who is regarded by the best of them as a triple-threat. Getting back to Petrillo for a minute, there might be a good passing duel in the offing when Ed Luedtke and Petrillo start pitching aerials.

And that's just about where Kingston will bank its victory. Luedtke has been getting a lot of work lately in this passing art and now appears to have it down pat. He should be able to keep in line with Petrillo.

While Luedtke is expected to do a lot of passing in tomorrow's contest and Al Flick might not be ready to play at all, the Weems-men will have something else to offer the warriors from Newburgh. A couple of fellows named Mark Kachigian and Tom Heneberry have been giving a good account of themselves lately and may do something tomorrow that will mean a win for the plucky Maroon team. Of course, if Flick should be ready, and there's possibilities that he will, Kingston's fast backfield will be ready to shoot the works on the boys from the Hilly City.

Newburgh's line holds an edge over Kingston in experience and this phase may be the difference between a winner and loser Thursday. However, Captain Buddy Ellsworth will be at his guard slot giving the boys that needed spirit as he has been doing all season. The lineups:

Newburgh	Kingston

Presentation Will Be Made During Turkey Day Tilt in New York; Burke Heads Movement

"Sal Marone Day" will be celebrated at the Thanksgiving Day Manhattan-Georgetown football game at the Polo Grounds in New York city when several bus loads of Highland and Poughkeepsie rooters will attend and present Sal, Manhattan captain, and former Highland and Raymond Riordan school ace, with a token of admiration from his home town and from his ex-teammates.

Coach Will Burke, Highland High mentor, heading the movement sponsored by several Highland high and Riordan athletes, has secured permission from Herb Knopf, Manhattan University coach, for a presentation during half time. The gift will be purchased by public donation in Highland and Poughkeepsie.

Regarding the presentation, Coach Knopf said, "I think it is absolutely a nice gesture by the people of Highland to want to present Sal with some little gift. This is his last game, and he has been a wonderful captain and football player."

Ice Fishing Will Start on Saturday; Tips to Fishermen

Winter Sport Will Be Open Until End of April; Five Tip-Ups Eligible

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP)—New York's ice fishing season, one of cold weather's chief attractions for thousands of sportsmen, opens Saturday with the possibility of one little drawback—no ice.

While opening day may find the ice fishermen without visible means of support on lakes open to fishing, the state conservation department issued annual regulations today governing the winter sport.

From Saturday until next April 30, the fishermen may take bullheads, catfish, eels, perch, sunfish, bluegills, crappies and rock bass. Pike, pickerel and pike perch become eligible catches until after March 1.

As in the past, each fisherman may operate five tip-ups, those ingenious "fish poles" which signal capture of a fish—or, at least, a by flag, bell or other device the bite. On Chautauqua and Oneida lakes and bodies of water not wholly within the state, the fishermen may use 15 tip-ups apiece. The tip-up operators, however, must be present at all times when their lines are in the water, except on Chautauqua and Oneida lakes where the tip-ups must have only one hook baited with an exclusive worm diet.

(Aside to ice fishermen: If there's no ice on opening day, don't worry. The conservation department maintains that on the basis of years of experience it has been scientifically proven that ice eventually will form if the weather gets cold enough.)

Virginia Jahn, Herman Van Putten Take Ice Racing Spotlight

Latter Captures Two-Mile Event At Williams Lake

Also Wins Southern State Title; Miss Jahn Tops Women Skaters; Red Cross Is Aided

With a turnout of about 2,000 skating fans in attendance at Williams Lake in Rosendale Sunday afternoon Herman Van Putten of New York city, staged a rally to win the two-mile and the Southern New York Men's Speed Skating title.

The flashing blades of Van Putten also registered a third place in the 220, a second in the 440 and a number one slot in the three-quarter mile. Van Putten won the main two mile event in nine minutes and five and four tenths seconds.

The New York ace ended his afternoon's work with a total of 90 points. Joe Janci of Norwalk, Conn., who finished second in the 220, second in the three-quarter mile and third in the two miler, closed with 50 points in second place.

Virginia Jahn, who proved to be one of the most popular racers at the events yesterday, won the women's title with a score of 80 points over Beatrice Amann of the Silver Skating Club with 70 points. Miss Jahn is from Cresskill, N. J.

Miss Jahn placed second to Miss Amann in the 220 yard event but then came through with victories in the 440 and 880. Beatrice Amann scored second place triumphs in the 440 and 880.

Jimmy Quinn of the Grand Street Boys Club also had 50. Frank Musiello of the Gotham Skating Club had 20. Musiello placed third in both events.

Four sparkling races featured the Senior Men's events. Don Jay of Newburgh opened the program with a victory in the 220 yard race in the time of 0:22.1. Joe Janci of Norwalk and Herman Van Putten of New York city followed.

The 440 yard race was taken by Joe Fullin of the Bay State Skating Club in the time of 0:43. Van Putten took second and third place went to Bob Beal of Poughkeepsie. The three-quarter miler was taken by Van Putten in the time of 2:52.2. Janci took second and Robert Jahn of Cresskill, N. J., brother of Virginia, had third place.

Van Putten's greatest victory came in the two mile run. Jahn had second and Janci finished in third. Van Putten was called upon to stage a good fight to nose out both Jahn and Janci.

Virginia Jahn shared honors with Van Putten when he headlined the women's events with sparkling triumphs in the 440 and 880 events. Her time in the 440 was 0:58.1 and in the 880 1:57.3.

BASKETBALL TODAY

Basketball's Hot Potato Is The Defense Question

By CLAIR BEE
Long Island University Coach

New York—Some time when you'd like to hear a good argument, stick your head into a group of basketball coaches and say: "Zone defense."

Then duck! Those two words can cause more hot talking among basketball men than any other pair in the English language.

Defined, the zone defense is one in which the defensive players take up positions before the defensive basket, shifting their positions to meet the advance of the ball but working more or less in set zones.

Since 1910, when the "five-man defense" was originated, the zone defense (ultimate outgrowth of the five-man) and the man-for-man defense have staged a bristling battle for superior recognition.

The zone defense seemed to have the upper hand about 20 years ago—but its popularity took a drop when offensive teams countered the massed defense by staying at the other end of the floor and refusing to move against it.

The zone came back though, after a change in the rules which made it mandatory for the offensive team to cross mid-court within 10 seconds after gaining possession of the ball.

Other rule developments and the increase in the use of the "screening" attack (especially hard to guard by man-for-man) has given the zone defense further impetus now about 40 per cent of the nation's high school teams and 30 per cent of the college teams use it.

The first zone defense put three men up front, the center out a little ahead of the forwards, and two men back—called the 3-2 defense. This was ideal for quick-break teams, since it put the three attackers right up front in position to break for the basket the second the ball changed hands. From that original set-up, the zones changed to a 2-1-2 basis, with the one man assigned to the pivot.

Penn State, Pitt, Yale, Creighton are a few outstanding examples of teams which have made the zone defense famous.

Inspired Recreations Play Pittsfield Golden Bears Wednesday at Auditorium

Bay Staters Are Improved Since Early Part of Season; Kingston Looks Ahead

Featuring Ed Krause, former Notre Dame ace and Harry Fitzpatrick, Celtic star, the Pittsfield Golden Bears, one of the hottest teams in the New York State Pro Basketball League will appear at the municipal auditorium Wednesday night to play the Kingston Recreations.

Pittsfield has one team in the circuit which is far different from the original club at the start of the season. Time after time the owners of the Bears fired and hired players until the team showed results. Now the Bay Staters are beginning to show class.

This week's tussle at the Broadway boards will bring together two high scoring outfits and a victory for either club would be an important factor at this stage of the race. The Recs entertain little if any chance of capturing first place in the loop.

However, second or third place would be mightily welcomed to the local basketball fans who have been experiencing a tough time in the state circuit thus far. Now, however, the Recs are beginning to show life.

Last week's thrilling triumph over the pace-setting Albany Senators served notice to all other clubs in the league that Kingston must be reckoned with. It was in this game that John Conaty made his debut as a manager in this city. Conaty was a big factor in the victory with his vital decisions on replacing men at different intervals of the battle.

While sports fans raved about the exploits of Jim Buckley and the other players, a lot of attention should be given to Hagen Anderson and Al Benson. These two veterans really came through in the clutch. Benson was a tower of strength on the defense and also helped to set up a number of

Byron Nelson Finally Wins California Golf Tournament

Captures 72-Hole Match With Par 274; Held Lead From Start; Little Follows

By RUSSELL NEWLAND
Oakland, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—He took ten years to do it, but Byron Nelson finally won a California golf tournament.

The shot specialist from Toledo, O., had acknowledged the plaudits given a national open and P.G.A. champion, but for the first time since he turned professional in 1932 he came up yesterday with the major prize in a California tournament.

He won the 72-hole Oakland open with a par-battering 274. There wasn't the shadow of a doubt as to who the best man was this time. Nelson led from start to finish.

After a three under par in the opening round, a stroke better than any rival, he added three successive 69's to finish five shots ahead of the field. The only other player to subdue par 35-35-70 for the Squay course over the four rounds was an amateur, John Dawson of Hollywood, who turned out a neat 279.

Dawson, of course, could not participate in the money awards, scoring players. Anderson's spirit did wonders for the Recs.

Wednesday's game will tell whether the Recs were just lucky last week or whether the club is in for better things to come. Certainly, the cagers have a few good breaks coming their way.

Despite last Wednesday's outstanding upset at the hands of the Troy Pros, local fans continued to give the Recs good backing such as Nelson, who pocketed $1,000. Dawson received a defense bond for his efforts.

Definitely at the peak of his game, Nelson will be one of the hot favorites in the San Francisco 72-hole open starting next Thursday.

Trailing Nelson in the money winning division were Lawson Little, San Francisco, and Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., tied at 280. Each collected $650.

Stroke behind were the pre-tournament favorite, Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Lloyd Mangrum of Monterey Park, Calif., and Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y. They deadlocked at 281 and each received $375.

The toughest blow of all landed on Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, Mo. He won the tournament a year ago in a playoff with E. J. Harrison, who failed this time to land among the money winners. He totalled a 291 for the four rounds.

Two holes in one were scored, one by Marion Heifner of Palo Alto, Calif., on the 142-yard 5th hole and the other by Glen Holden, Oakland, who hit a brassie shot for an ace on the 205-yard 17th.

Kerhonkson Gets Close 16 to 14 Win Over Highlanders

Winners Stage 2nd Half Spree in Registering N. O. S. U. Triumph Friday Night

Kerhonkson High School's quintet notched its third straight N. O. S. U. League win when it downed Highland in a thrilling 16 to 14 game on the winner's court Friday night. Mazzett of the losers was high with six points.

Highland started fast on defensive errors by Kerhonkson and collected a 7 to 0 lead in the first few minutes of the game. At the end of the half Highland led by 11 to 10.

After the intermission Kerhonkson started to go and staged a display of defensive strength and fight which limited the losers to three points in the third quarter and blanked them in the final session.

The victory puts Kerhonkson on top of the N. O. S. U. League standings and gives the club an edge in the race for its third league title.

In the preliminary the Highland Jayvees scored an 18 to 10 victory over the Kerhonkson Juniors.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Jan. 19—(Wide World)—After seeing what has happened to the first ten, we're not surprised that the tennis bosses plan to put in extra effort to develop young players . . . with two top-rankers in the pros, two listening for offers, one in the navy and three under minor penalties because of last year's expense accounts, the guys who run the big tournaments probably are wondering where the next drawing-card will come from . . . we still think open tournaments would simplify the matter by giving the kids who need extra expense money a chance to earn it honestly . . . The story that the National Leagues were considering the Phillies' demand for a loan at that "secret" meeting doesn't sound quite right. The Phils have been able to sell players right along for the kind of dough the Browns are trying to borrow and they still have some to sell if they're that hard up.

White Eagles Thrash Aces By 39 to 19 for Initial Victory of Cage Campaign

Tatarzewski and Nalepa Pace Victors; Forsts Over All Stars

Paced by Frank Tatarzewski and Jerry Nalepa, who counted nine and eight points respectively, the White Eagle basketball team started rolling last night at the Delaware avenue court and didn't wind up the powerhouse until it had scored a 39 to 19 victory over the Madden Aces.

It was the first victory of the season for the Polish cagers who have a 500 record so far. Last week they were defeated by a Wappingers Falls quintet. Next week Hudson will appear at the local boards.

After being held to a 15 to 11 score in the first half the Eagles really started moving in the last two sessions. Showing plenty of offensive power, the Eagles also displayed expert defensive tactics, holding the Aces to eight points in these final two periods.

Jimmy Madden did the brunt of the work for the losers, collecting eight markers. Maroon came through with a half dozen.

In the prelin to last night's contest Forst Packers scored a 45 to 41 triumph over the All Stars. Sass topped the winners with 11 points. Tierney and Thomas followed with eight apiece. Zelle pumped the cords for 11 points to head the Stars.

Average U. S. Ship Is 19.7 Years Old

Merchant Fleet's 'Age' Up Slightly From 1940.

NEW YORK.—Despite the increase in merchant ship construction during the last year in the United States, the average age of vessels in the American merchant fleet is higher than last year, according to the latest bulletin issued by the American bureau of shipping on the subject.

A breakdown of age figures on the 1,123 ships in United States ocean-going merchant service on October 1, 1941, shows that 79.2 per cent are more than 20 years old. Only 20.8 per cent of the vessels owned by other countries are past the 20-year mark. Eleven per cent of the American ships are less than five years old, while 17 per cent of the foreign craft are within this class.

The average age of merchant ships flying the United States flag is 19.7 years, one-tenth of 1 per cent more than at the time a similar survey completed on October 1, 1940.

These figures do not give a true picture of the potential quality of our merchant fleet, however, and it is expected that as the long-range emergency shipbuilding programs of the United States maritime commission progress this country will have a first-class fleet of cargo carriers, with a gradual increase in the number of new vessels.

On the basis of these age figures it is difficult to realize, for example, that the number of ocean-going steel merchant ships completed in the first 10 months of this year is nearly double the total for the same period in 1940.

On October 1 of this year, 1,011 vessels were under construction or

Murray Tells C.I.O. Union Organizing Must Be Continued

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—Philip Murray told the C.I.O.'s national convention today that "nothing must stop the work of organizing the unorganized in America—not even a great national emergency."

The Congress of Industrial Organizations lacked the stand of its representatives who resigned from the National Defense Mediation Board in the current captive coal mines dispute.

Delegates approved a committee report which set forth:

"The decision of the board, in turning down the perfectly reasonable and logical request of the United Mine Workers of America and in establishing a governmental policy of open shop, has made it impossible for labor representatives who keep the interests of labor at heart to continue as members or alternates of the board. We therefore commend and endorse the action of President Philip Murray, of U.M.W.A. Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy and their associates from the C.I.O. in resigning from the National Defense Mediation Board."

Murray, as well as Kennedy and their alternates on the board, quit after the board recommended against a union ship in captive mines in the period which preceded the current strike.

The report urged the government to adopt the C.I.O.'s industrial council plan as a means of stabilizing labor relations. This plan envisages councils in basic defense industries made up of representatives of management, labor and government who would plan production, allocate raw materials and contracts and adjust the supply of workers to meet current and contemplated needs.

The delegates also voted approval of another section of the report which outlined the organization of "the cruelly exploited workers of the south" as a major task of the C.I.O.

Three Reported Bitten

J. F. Johnson of 66 South Manor avenue, a meter reader for the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., was severely bitten by a dog in the right leg and right hand on Tuesday, according to a report made to the police headquarters by the electric company. It was stated that he had gone to the Brady home at 52 Newkirk avenue to read the meter and was attacked by the dog, Johnson is being treated by Dr. John Krom. Two children, Joan Carpino, 10, and Eugene Carpino, 7, of 90 Grand street, were bitten Tuesday by a dog while they were out in the yard at their home, according to a report made to the police that day. The girl was bitten on the leg and the boy on the right hand.

Sympathy Strikes Spread in Nation

few days more found corroboration in authoritative House reports that Congress had received a quiet go-ahead signal for middle-of-the-road legislation to deal with defense strikes, but with the understanding that action would be deferred for a week or so.

Highly placed legislators said that the question probably would not come up in the House until C. I. O.'s Detroit convention had ended and until the captive coal mine strike had been settled.

Such a delay, they explained, was considered advisable to avoid further complications in the existing labor situation.

Has France 'Gone' To Hitler? Weigh Petain's Sad Task

helm. Petain's job was, and is, to save the soul of France. His country was so utterly crushed that there was danger that the fighting spirit—the will to recover—might be lost.

All Petain's efforts would seem to have been directed toward shielding his trampled people and rekindling this spirit. To be sure, there are influential Frenchmen who have been doing all in their power to swing their countrymen to the support of the Hitlerian program. The loss has been no sign, however, that the old marshal has become a willing servant of the fuhrer.

It is true that Petain has made concessions to the Nazis, and he probably will make more, but we must look carefully at his position before saying that he has joined the Germans in heart. It is reasonable to doubt that a man of the marshal's high sense of honor would willingly do anything to damage the cause of his late ally, even though he might be, and undoubtedly has been, forced into some actions which were harmful to Britain.

Situation Is Terrible

However, the situation of France is very terrible. She is on the verge of another winter of cruel privation. A million of her men are still in German prison camps. Industry, business, agriculture—in short, all endeavors—are in the slough of despond.

Now what would you do if you were Marshal Petain, and the Nazis said: "If you will cooperate with us so-and-so, we will give back your million men to their wives and children, and we will make the military occupation easier for you."

It's all very well to say that we should grit our teeth and bear the privations of the present rather than make concessions to the Nazis. But that's easier said than done, especially when people are hungry and cold and are separated from their loved ones.

It is no reflection on Petain's honor that he takes cognizance of the fact that if the allies win the war they will put France on her feet again. That has been promised to the Free French committee and bound to be carried out, irrespective of any action which the Vichy government takes now.

Is it so strange then to find Marshal Petain giving ground here and there to Hitler? The Nazi chief could reach out and take anything he wanted by force, that is, anything excepting the goodwill of France.

It strikes me that not only the charitable but the common-sense view to take is that Petain is trying to save all he can of his fatherland for the day when the allies can put it on its feet once more. The danger of the position, of course, is that those French influences which would like to go over to Hitler lock, stock and barrel, may gain the ascendancy over the aged chief of state.

Moshell Held Guilty

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP)—The Court of Appeals upheld today the first degree murder conviction of Joseph Moshell, 47, Philadelphia, Pa., dry cleaning establishment owner, in the fatal shooting of his 17-year-old daughter Melba at a Valhalla convent in July, 1940. The decision of the state's highest tribunal was unanimous. Moshell, a native of Persia and a World War veteran, was accused of shooting his daughter with a 10-year-old pistol while visiting her at the convent.

Lighthouse Keeper Buys His Seals

The healthiest 4-H girl in New York state, Nancy Boice of Lake Katrine, a student of nutrition in the State School of Agriculture at Delhi, today delivered to Robert Howard, the Rondout Lighthouse keeper the two first sheets of 1941 Christmas Seals sold in Ulster county.

Traveling over the creek in the boat of Walter Kidd, Miss Boice was accompanied by members of the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health, Mrs. Marion Bullard and Miss Katherine M. Murphy, the secretary. Pratt Boice, her father and president of the Ulster County 4-H Club, and Edmund Bower, the Ulster County 4-H Club agent and the Freeman photographer.

The theme of the Seal this year is a staunch and stately lighthouse flashing out a broad beam of light as warning and guidance in the unceasing crusade against tuberculosis.

Said Mr. Howard as he accepted the Seals, "Christmas time has meant Christmas Seal time to me for many years, but what a delightful surprise it is this year to receive the first two sheets of Seals from the healthiest girl in New York state. I appreciate the honor of being the first to receive my order of Seals and I hope this will be just the beginning of the thousands that will be bought in Ulster county."

The ceremony at the lighthouse occurred while the Seals were going forward through the mails to the residents of Kingston and Ulster county, the first day of the campaign. Meanwhile booths were being opened in stores, post offices, etc., where Seals could be purchased in any quantity. Additional Seals also may be obtained from campaign headquarters at 74 John street, Kingston.

"It is difficult to judge," said Judge Joseph M. Fowler, chairman of the campaign committee, "how many Seals are going to be needed in advance in Ulster county, but it is heartening to know that there has been a steady increase in the past few years."

"We hope that every piece of Christmas mail that goes out from our post offices will have at least one Christmas Seal adorning it. Decorative though they are, what is more important is the realization that every Seal is just that much help in the nationwide fight against tuberculosis, with benefits directly derived in our community. The campaign is on!"

Has France 'Gone' To Hitler? Weigh Petain's Sad Task

helm. Petain's job was, and is, to save the soul of France. His country was so utterly crushed that there was danger that the fighting spirit—the will to recover—might be lost.

All Petain's efforts would seem to have been directed toward shielding his trampled people and rekindling this spirit. To be sure, there are influential Frenchmen who have been doing all in their power to swing their countrymen to the support of the Hitlerian program. The loss has been no sign, however, that the old marshal has become a willing servant of the fuhrer.

It is true that Petain has made concessions to the Nazis, and he probably will make more, but we must look carefully at his position before saying that he has joined the Germans in heart. It is reasonable to doubt that a man of the marshal's high sense of honor would willingly do anything to damage the cause of his late ally, even though he might be, and undoubtedly has been, forced into some actions which were harmful to Britain.

Situation Is Terrible

However, the situation of France is very terrible. She is on the verge of another winter of cruel privation. A million of her men are still in German prison camps. Industry, business, agriculture—in short, all endeavors—are in the slough of despond.

Now what would you do if you were Marshal Petain, and the Nazis said: "If you will cooperate with us so-and-so, we will give back your million men to their wives and children, and we will make the military occupation easier for you."

It's all very well to say that we should grit our teeth and bear the privations of the present rather than make concessions to the Nazis. But that's easier said than done, especially when people are hungry and cold and are separated from their loved ones.

It is no reflection on Petain's honor that he takes cognizance of the fact that if the allies win the war they will put France on her feet again. That has been promised to the Free French committee and bound to be carried out, irrespective of any action which the Vichy government takes now.

Is it so strange then to find Marshal Petain giving ground here and there to Hitler? The Nazi chief could reach out and take anything he wanted by force, that is, anything excepting the goodwill of France.

It strikes me that not only the charitable but the common-sense view to take is that Petain is trying to save all he can of his fatherland for the day when the allies can put it on its feet once more. The danger of the position, of course, is that those French influences which would like to go over to Hitler lock, stock and barrel, may gain the ascendancy over the aged chief of state.

Present Economic Situation to Be Convention Topic

Cornell University Expert to Be Among Those Slated to Address Fruit Growers

"How the Present Economic Situation Will Affect the Farmer and the Fruit Grower" will be the topic of Dr. William I. Myers, head of the Agricultural economics department at Cornell University, before the New York State Horticultural Society at Kingston, Thursday, January 29.

Dr. Myers' talk will be one of several presented to the society on what to expect during 1942. The society will be in session for three days, January 28 to 30, in Kingston. Other speakers will include Holton V. Noyes, State Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets; Truman Nold, Manager of the National Apple Institute; and Samuel Fraser, Secretary of the International Apple Association, all of whom will touch upon the general economic outlook for New York Fruit Growers.

Bruce P. Jones of Hall, elected president of the Society at its recent meeting in Rochester, will speak on the afternoon of the first day. He will be introduced by Theodore E. Cross of LaGrangeville, recently elected first vice-president. Mr. Jones is an extensive grower. He also is president of the New York State Seed Improvement Co-operative Association. The speaker at the annual dinner will be Harry J. Eustace, of Agricultural Trade Relations Inc., San Francisco. For some years he was on the staff of the Geneva Experiment Station and later at Michigan Agricultural College.

Prof. Frank N. Fagan of Pennsylvania State College has an interesting report to give on how growers in his state have developed outlets for fruit in nearby small cities. A. T. Williams, assistant county agent in Dutchess county, will give a resume of how some other states are handling their apple promotional jobs. Theodor Osholm of Esopus will tell about a plan adopted this season by Ulster county growers. Dr. F. A. Harper of Cornell University will review the latest findings on marketing of New York apples.

E. V. Vedder of Schoharie will discuss the proposal for a state apple advertising tax in N. Y. State. For several years many growers have been of the opinion that the apple industry needs to do more sales promotion work and an apple tax has been suggested as one way to finance it.

RABBI E. T. SANDREAU

A special joint meeting of the Kingston Zionist District and the Hadassah Women's Organization has been called for this evening to hear an address by Rabbi Edward T. Sandreau.

Rabbi Sandreau of New York was born in Philadelphia and received his education at the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia University, University of Oregon, and the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. After receiving his rabbinical degree, he served a prominent congregation on the west coast before coming east.

He was extremely active in Zionist and cultural affairs in several of the west coast cities, having been chairman of the Zionists of the Northwest, a leader of the Jewish Education Association, seminar-lecturer at Reed College, a contributor to various newspapers and journals, among them "The Reconstructionist," "The Scribe," etc. He has been an N. B. C. speaker on a weekly radio series, and chairman of the Social Workers Association of the Northwest. He is a member of the Rabbinical Assembly, the Academy for Jewish Research, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the United Synagogue of America.

The meeting will be an open one, to which the public is invited. Admission will be free, and there will be no solicitation of funds.

In honor of the memory of the Hon. Louis D. Brandeis, Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and noted Zionist leader, the Brandeis Memorial Membership Campaign has now been in progress since December 1 and it will continue until February 1.

The slogan of the drive is: "The membership of the Zionist Organization of America should be doubled during the current year."

A proclamation issued by the president of the Z.O.A., the Hon. Louis E. Levinthal, states:

"As an enduring monument to a modern Maccabean, the Brandeis Memorial Membership must evoke a nationwide response. I call upon every Jew who cherishes the memory of Louis D. Brandeis and who feels a kinship and sympathy with the valiant people of Palestine to enroll as a member of the Zionist Organization of America."

The meeting, which will take place at the Temple Emanuel, at 8 p. m., will be in charge of Sigmond Rudisch, president, and Ben Silverman, chairman of the membership committee, of the Kingston Zionist District. A musical program has been arranged to precede the talk by Rabbi Sandreau.

Central Business Men Hold Banquet

Freeman Photo

the year," while Edelmuth was on a business trip in Delaware county.

The regrets of Mr. Edelmuth at being unable to be present at the banquet were brought by Harry B. Walker, president of the association, who presided at the banquet, while Heiselman's regrets were conveyed by Alderman-at-large Schwenk and Corporation Counsel Cashin.

Mr. Cashin in his address said that what he might say in regard to the accomplishments of the Heiselman administration might be considered biased as he was a member of the administration, but he believed that one of the outstanding achievements of the administration would prove to be the elimination of the Broadway crossing.

Judge Cook, who followed Mr. Cashin, expressed the opinion that future generations will regret to see the street depressed under the railroad tracks and that he was one of the many business men of the central section who had fought strenuously to have the elimination accomplished by depressing all of the crossings under the streets.

Former Chief of Police Wood, however, declared that in his opinion the elimination of the crossing would not prove as great a detriment as many believed.

President Walker as toastmaster introduced Alderman-at-large Schwenk who said that it was a pleasure to meet with the Central Business Men's Association. As a resident of that section of the city, he said, he was always deeply interested in anything that affected that section. Also as a city official, he said, he was interested not only in central Broadway but the entire city. He said that Mayor Heiselman had asked him to express his regrets at not being able to be present that night.

Corporation Counsel Cashin touched on the local election and said: "I have been on the losing side before. I can smile as a winner and I hope I can also smile as a loser. We have had an election and the people have made a choice. I am first and foremost a citizen of Kingston and of the United States. I am expressing the sentiments not only of myself but of Mayor Heiselman in offering the mayor-elect to extend to him any help or information that we have gained in office. Mayor Heiselman himself so informed Mr. Edelmuth when they met at the Legion Ball the other night."

"Politics should be forgotten after election day," said Mr. Cashin. "These are trying times and we must all work together for the preservation of our nation. One thing this administration has tried to do and that is the elimination of the Broadway crossing. It may not please every one of you, but the principal of the greatest good to the greatest number must be preserved.

Mr. Cashin called attention to the fact that the mayor had recently held a conversation with one of the public service officials and had been informed that matters were progressing. He said that the real estate adjusters would be in Kingston shortly to confer with affected property owners.

Old Broadway Recalled
Judge Cook spoke in a reminiscent vein of Broadway as he remembered it half a century ago, and in an interesting manner he recalled the old business houses in the central section of the city, and of the men who had conducted them. He recalled the days when Broadway was known as Union Avenue, and said that he had been born and brought up in the central section of the city and that it had always held a charm for him.

The judge then touched upon the elimination of the Broadway crossing and said that future generations will regret seeing Broadway under the railroad tracks. He said that he was one of the many men who had fought strenuously against the elimination as now planned, and the fight had been successful in postponing the elimination for some years.

Judge Cook expressed the belief that the crossing elimination would not become an accomplished fact for some years yet owing to the priority orders due to national defense which would make it difficult to obtain the steel needed in the project. The judge said that at the time the state crossing elimination bond issue was put before the voters they had been assured that if it was adopted by the voters of the state all of the railroad tracks in the city would be placed underground. It did pass, but the tracks are not going to be depressed.

E. H. Fowler of the Downtown Business Men's Association conveyed the regrets of President Harry Kaplan that he was unable to attend the banquet, and expressed the hope that some day the three business associations would be combined into one large and aggressive association.

James H. Betts also brought the regrets of James L. Rowe, president of the Uptown Business Men's Association at being unable to attend that night. Mr. Betts said that all three business associations had a definite aim, and each looked after the interests of their own section of the city. He suggested that the idea might be considered of forming what might be called the Kingston Business Men's Council, the membership composed of delegates from each of the three business associations.

Chief Wood Speaks
Former Chief of Police J. Allan Wood recalled that he had been retired from the police department for three years, but once a policeman, always a policeman. He also spoke briefly in a reminiscent vein of old Kingston, and especially of central Broadway, and believed that the elimination of the crossing as planned would not

Pastor Denies Scandal Charges

Dr. Darlington Asks Public Withhold Opinion in Surrogate's Case

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington, rector of the Church of Heavenly Rest, fashionable Episcopal church on Fifth avenue in New York city, last night termed as "utterly false" an attorney's charge that he was the "lover" of the late Mrs. Anna Hollingsworth Siter Paton.

Mrs. Paton would to Dr. Darlington her home and the income from three-tenths of the residue of her estate of about $1,000,000.

Joseph Nickerson, counsel for an objector to the will, asserted in Surrogate's Court yesterday that Dr. Darlington met Mrs. Paton when he officiated at the funeral of her husband in 1926. He added that he had photograph copies of love letters written by the clergyman.

In his statement, Dr. Darlington expressed a hope that the public would withhold judgment until litigation had been completed. "I will only say now," he said, "that the charges that have been made involving the good name of either Mrs. Paton or myself in the effort to unsettle her will are utterly false. What particularly distresses me is that some of her relatives have seen fit to bring her name into the picture in an unfavorable light."

"Mrs. Paton was not only a friend of mine but of all the members of my family and was one of the most faithful and loyal members of the Church of Heavenly Rest."

Charles H. Fay, counsel for the clergyman in the court session at which a request for a closed hearing was granted, asserted that "Dr. Darlington is 51. Mrs. Paton was 77. Dr. Darlington is happily married; his mother lived until her death in Mrs. Paton's apartment."

Objectors to the will are Mrs. Edith Collins Siter, of Philadelphia, widow and executrix of a brother of Mrs. Paton, and her two daughters.

The annual production of brick by the more than 500 United States brick manufacturers reporting to the Census Bureau would build a double brick wall 2,000 miles long and 10 feet high.

More than a hundred of the business men of the central section of the city attended the banquet which was one of the most successful held by the organization.

Martocci Seeks To Thwart Delay In Union Action

An order to show cause why a temporary stay secured last week should not be vacated and an election of officers and an accounting be had by members of Local 17, International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, was secured Monday by Francis Martocci, attorney for a group of union members. This order is returnable today before the Appellate Division at Albany.

By the order Mr. Martocci seeks to compel the union to comply with an order of Justice Bergan which was entered in the county clerk's office early this month which directed that an election of officers be held and that an accounting, as demanded, be held.

This election was scheduled for last Sunday when nominations were to have been made but a temporary stay was secured by the defendant officers of the union two days prior to the date set for the election and the compliance with the orders of Justice Bergan was postponed. Mr. Martocci then sought the order to show cause from the Appellate Division in an effort to have the temporary stay dismissed and the order of Justice Bergan complied with.

The action originally was brought by certain union members seeking to have an election of officers and for an accounting of union funds. The action is brought against officers of the union whom it is charged have prevented an election and failed to make a suitable accounting of union funds for a long period.

The show cause order seeking to dismissal of the temporary injunction was scheduled to be heard this afternoon.
